Ellen Beach Yaw, her portrait & records

ELLEN BEACH YAW — "LARK ELLEN"

covered five unpublished masters. I once asked her if she had recorded the "Mad Scene" from Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor" and, that she had heard it played for her several days after recording it but did not know what had become of it. I then asked her permission to undertake research work on her recordings and she most graciously granted my request and wrote a note giving me permission to research the files at R C A in Camden, N J.

In April, 1913, she recorded six known selections for Thomas A. Edison's Phonograph Company in the studios in New York City. Only one was released and, that was her concert composition THE SKYLARK where she sings trills on 3rds and 5ths and, ends the song with a glissando run ending in b flat above high c, the highest note recorded of her voice.

Some time in 1913, in Philadelphia, she recorded for the Keen-O-Phone Company, five known selections. Mr. Fred Hager was in charge of the recording and, the string section of the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra, was hired to play for the Ellen Beach Yaw discs. A sapphire needle is required to play these vertically-cut recordings. Mr. Hager wrote me telling me that during the great depression he sold many masters and records to put bread and butter on his table and the Yaw masters and discs were among the sales. He believes that there were other discs made by Mme. Yaw but could not recall to whom he had sold them. The Company had a catalogue with her photo in it and the daughter of Mr. Hager wanted $150 for the catalogue!

OTHER NOTES

The photograph, above left, shows Mme Yaw and me in Dec. 1937, and was taken by the 'Los Angeles Times' newspaper in which it appeared. It shows us listening to her Rex Disc recorded in Philadelphia of the song "Annie Laurie". She had completely forgotten that she had recorded that song, but on hearing the voice said softly, "Yes, it is my voice." Originally recorded for Keen-O-Phone", but owing to financial troubles the company was sold to the Rex, and later on it was the Rischelle Company.

The photograph on the front cover shows a portrait of Ellen Beach Yaw done in Paris in 1904 by the noted American painter, Seymour Thomas, who died in Southern California in the 1930's. He had painted many of the great ones in his time. This photo also shows copies of the Rex discs of "Annie Laurie" and the "Polonaise" from Thomas' Mignon.

Several years ago I went to the Thomas A. Edison Historical Site at West Orange, and discovered the ORIGINAL piece of paper written by Mr. Edison when Mme Yaw sang scales, runs and trills and a song into an immense recording machine. Mr. Edison called this voice test a "scientific test". Several days later, at the request of Mrs. Edison, who was president of the Women's Club, requested Ellen Beach Yaw to sing for her Club, which Mme. Yaw most graciously did.

Mme Yaw had the HIGHEST vocal range in musical history and sang the G below middle C, to the highest E on the piano or the E IN ALTISSIMO. She sang for some of the crowned heads of Europe at the turn-of-the-century and in London she was a favourite of the concert-going public. Briefly in 1899 she appeared at the Savoy Theatre in the title role of "Rose of Persia", composed especially for her, by Sir Arthur Sullivan.

ER RECORDINGS

Mme Yaw was one of the first famous singers to make records. In London, at the studios of the Gramophone Company, she recorded nine selections on 11th. March, 1899 Mr. F. W. Gaisberg was in charge of the recordings. Unfortunately, the masters of these seven-inch discs were all destroyed in the factory at Hannover, Germany, during the 1914-1918 war along with hundreds of other masters. Several of the discs have flute obligatos by the noted flautist W. A. Fransella. Can someone please furnish me with biographical information on Mr. Fransella?

In Paris, in late August, 1902, she sang at a private concert for the Shah of Persia. The Shah was greatly enthralled with her voice and beautiful personality and, request that she make phonograph cylinders in her studio in Paris. The cylinders were recorded during the first week of September, 1902, and, were taken to Persia (Iran). For one week she sang into a small funnel, the recording machine was owned by the Shah. For years I have been trying to obtain copies of these Yaw cylinders in vain. I understand that the Yaw-cylinders are or were in the Museum in Teheran.

She told me, "In the studios of the Columbia Phonograph Company, I recorded two selections, when Columbia first came out with flat discs. (1902) I do not recall what I sang." Unfortunately, all of the old files, letters, and records were destroyed years ago and, there is no way to obtain factual information on the Yaw-Columbia recordings.

On 23rd, 24th, and 25th. September, 1907, she recorded ten selections for the Victor Talking Machine Company, in the Philadelphia studios. Some twenty-two "takes" were recorded but only four released. In March, 1938, I dis-

Can see no defects of any kind

"Can see no defects of any kind in this voice. Sweet on low and mellow - best high notes yet.
Enormous range - good for us." So wrote Thomas A Edison in February, 1913.

In early 1905 she sang in Rome, Naples and Catania in 23 operatic performances under the Italian name of Elena Elvanna. She once told me, "I am sorry that I changed my name. I should not have listened to the people!"

In London she sang two performances of the role 'Gilda' in Verdi's 'Rigoletto' at the then new Waldorf Theatre, later the Strand Theatre. They took place in July, 1905. These two performances and the operatic performances in Italy were under the management of Mr. Henry Russell, who was the brother of Sir Landon Ronald, the noted pianist who toured with Patti, Melba, Calve, etc.

Ellen Beach Yaw ("Lark Ellen") was under the patronage of the wealthy English lady, Lady Valerie Sussie Meux, who sent her to Paris, to study with the great Marchesi. Lady Meux was the wife of Lord Henry Meux who was in the brewing business of that name. Lord and Lady Meux resided at Temple Bar. Lady Meux wanted Mme. Yaw to sing at Covent Garden and once told her, "You know, I can easily arrange for you to sing at Covent Garden, would you like to sing there?" Mme. Yaw sweetly replied, "No, Melba is the Queen there!" Mme. Yaw being a fine Christian woman had no desire to become involved in back-stage quarrels and fights.

On 21st. March, 1908, she made a sensational debut at the old Metropolitan Opera House, in New York, in the title role in Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor" with Bonci. She was obliged to repeat the famous cadenza in the "Mad Scene" and all the press notices were fine, as I have read most of them. Mr. Henrich Conried, then manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, telephoned at the Waldorf Hotel where she was staying and requested that she come to his office, where a three-year contract was offered to her and, at the same time, the manager of the Vienna Opera offered her a three-year contract, as he too had heard her performance. In April, 1906, Oscar Hammerstein offered her a contract to sing at the Manhattan Opera House, in New York City. She refused all three offers, as her concert tours were more financially profitable.

Before going to Europe for further vocal study, she had made her fortune and fame in America with concert tours in the 1890's and, with the money earned she bought a 15-acre orange grove in the then small town of Covina, California, where her home was from 1903 until her passing in 1947. For many years there was "The Lark Ellen Home for Boys" in various cities in and around Los Angeles, named in her honour in June, 1897. She and her sister, the noted Mrs. Anna Yaw Thorpe supported this home but unfortunately, several years ago, the home closed due to inflation. Covina has the "Lark Ellen Avenue" named in her honour in 1917, "Lark Ellen Grammar School", "Lark Ellen Station" where the old red electric cars stopped, the "Lark Ellen Nursery", "The Lark Ellen Hospital" now stands on the spot where her original home was, the "Lark Ellen Towers" (apartments) now stands where her orange grove was. "Lark Ellen" was a sobriquet bestowed upon her by the noted General Harrison Grey Otis, the founder of the "Los Angeles Times", when he first heard her sing in Los Angeles, in the 1890's, when she was on a concert tour.

Mad Scene - "Lucia" - Unissued Victor + Charmant Oiseau (David) - Unissued Victor + Aria, "Il Re pastore" (Mozart) - Victor + Nightingale's Song (V. Masse) "Les Noces de Jeannette" - Victor + Swiss Echo Song (Eckert) - Victor +

Star Spangled Banner - Unissued Victor + Laughing Song (Auber) "Manon Lescaut" - Unissued Victor + Bell Song (Delibes) "Lakme" - Victor + Le Bonheur (Saint Saëns) "Le Timbre d'Argent" + The Skylark (Yaw) - Edison Diamond Disc + The Skylark (Yaw) - Keen-O-Phone + Annie Laurie - Rex + Polonaise (Thomas) "Mignon" - Unissued Edison.

The above listing of "items" comprises a programme which includes many records which are legends that one cannot otherwise hear.

In the "old days" one used to thrill to the prospect of finding a record "not listed in Bauer" - but one was sometimes very disappointed upon hearing such an item. But we are certainly lucky that Mr. Altamirano has been able to include some unpublished Victors in his compilation. They do not disappoint.

Musically all of the various recordings are lasting testimonials to Mme. Yaw's art. They have different original tonal qualities and degrees of wear. The Rex and Keen-O-phone records were adequately recorded, being equal to the Edison of "Skylark" which is not so well-sounding as the Mignon "Polonaise" on the same make. The transfer from the original discs to cassettes was wisely entrusted to Mr. Merritt Malvern, who, I'm sure, extracted the most of the music from the originals - without muffling them. There will be many of our readers who will have heard very little of Mme. Yaw's singing. I can thoroughly recommend this cassette to you. It also has a spoken commentary by "Tony" Altamirano which links the selections that provide a welcome cross-section of the singer's work.

Ellen Beach Yaw Cassette, available from Merritt Recordings, 22 Grimsby Road, Buffalo, New York 14223, USA. Price $7.00 including postage. There is an Ellen Beach Yaw LP available from Club 99, Mrs. E. A. Lebow, 24-39, 81st. Street, Elmhurst, New York, 11373, USA. Price $6.50 including postage. We understand that an LP of Ellen Beach Yaw recordings will be issued in England by Pearl Records late in 1981.

OFF THE RECORD

"Tell me that again"

JOHN GOSLIN

Several issues ago I wrote a piece about Laurel & Hardy; and it occurs to me that readers might care to have the text of their sole 78rpm record: this, it will be recalled is on 12-inch British Columbia, DX 370 (CAX 6486 and 6488) recorded in London, 18th. August, 1932, with a studio orchestra conducted by Van Phillips.

SIDE ONE (The famous signature tune is whistled, apparently by two people we assume to be Stan and Olly themselves.)

Olly: Ladies and gentlemen, this is Cliver Hardy speaking. I am taking this opportunity of thanking you and the countless friends in the British Isles for the wonderfully whole-hearted reception you have given me on my first visit to your beautiful country. Words can not describe my feelings of p---

Stan: Hey!

Olly: Never before have I been received . . .

Stan: Hey!

Olly: NEVER before have been so . . .

Stan: (whistles in a hailing kind of fashion.)

Olly: Pardon me, ladies and gentlemen - I think my friend Mr. Laurel wishes to SPEAK to me . . . What's on your mind?

Stan: What about mentioning me in your speech?

Olly: Don't worry, I'll get to you in just a few minutes.

Stan: In a few minutes?

Olly: Certainly.

Stan: Well, the record'll be over in a few minutes, then you won't be able to . . .

Olly: Listen - why don't you do something to help me?

Stan: Well, what can I do?

Olly: Here - here's a hardboiled egg - eat that and just relax.

Stan: Thank you, Olly. (Scrunches loudly)

Olly: (Scrunch) Now, let's see where I was (scrunch). oh (scrunch). . . ladies and gentlemen ... (scrunch)... this is Oliver Hardy speaking ... (scrunch)... I am taking this opportunity of thanking you (scrunch) and the countless friends in the British Isles... run (scrunch)... for the wonderfully whole-hearted reception you have given me on my first visit to your... (gulp)... beautiful country...

Stan: Olly!

Olly: What?

Stan: Speak up.

Olly: What for?

Stan: I can't hear you.

Olly: Well, if you get that egg down you'll be able to hear me much better.

Stan: I just did get the egg down.

Olly: What'd you do with the eggshell?

Stan: What eggshell?

Olly: Don't tell me you've eaten the egg with the shell on.

Stan: Well, I didn't know . . . you didn't tell me anything about . . .

Olly: Oooo-oh!

Stan: You - you don't happen to have another one, do ya?

Olly: No, I haven't.

Stan: 've you got any nuts?

Olly: No, I haven't got any N U T S.

Stan: Well, what'd you do with those we bought in New York?

Olly: Oh, I left them in my wardrobe trunk.

Stan: Where is your trunk? Maybe we could get them.

Olly: Oh, that reminds me - where I S my trunk? I haven't seen it for several days.

Stan: Have you felt in all your pockets?

Olly: Now, that's a good idea . . . I'll take a look . . .

Whaddya mean, have I felt in all my pockets? Will you please stop annoying me while I make this speech?

Stan: No, I'm not annoying you .. I don't want to . . .

Olly: Now keep quiet -

Stan: All right -

Olly: Ladies and gentlemen! (He does his smug chuckle) Hm, hm, hm, hm, gm!

Stan: Stop wiggling your tie!

Olly: What do you mean, stop wiggling my tie?

Stan: Well, evry time you get fancy, you start wiggling your tie, and it looks silly.

Olly: If you interrupt me again, I'll wiggle you.

Stan: Ooooooh! (cries)

Olly: What are you crying for?

Stan: (In his quavery voice) I don't want to be wiggled....

Olly: Pardon me, ladies and gentlemen. I wish to speak to my friend PRIVATELY . . . What are you trying to do? Spoil my speech?

Stan: No that's impossible -

Olly: You bet your life it's impossible.

Stan: That's the first time you've agreed with me, Olly.

Olly: Oh, you're getting sarcastic, huh?

Stan: No - no -

Olly: Just for that, YOU make a speech.

Stan: I don't wanna make a speech.

Olly: Oh, yes, you will make a speech.

Stan: I - I don't know anything about it.

Olly: Go ahead . . .

Stan: All right.... Ladies and gentlemen... (Olly is heard tapping four times)

Olly: - with your hat off.

LAUREL AND HARDY

Stan: Oh, I beg your "pudden" - pardon - Ladies and gentlemen - with your hat off - it's the first....
 Olly: Oooo - oh! You don't say that -
 Stan: Oh, ladies and gentlemen - without your hat off -
 Olly: Oh - aah - go ahead!
 Stan: Ladies and gentlemen, you'll never know how happy we are to be here with you tonight in Chicago, America..
 Olly: Oooh!
 Stan: It's the first . . .
 Olly: We're in London, you fool, L O N D O N!
 Stan: Well, I didn't know - I've been travellin' to so many places I wasn't quite sure just where we were-
 Olly: Oh, go ahead, it won't make any difference anyway-
 Stan: So this is London, eh?
 Olly: Yes - London!
 Stan: Ladies and gentlemen, I'm so . . .
 Olly: You've said that once.
 Stan: All right. I'm so happy to be here with you tonight in London, Scotland. I'd like . . .
 Olly: Oh, that's done it. No more speeches.
 Stan: Whaddya mean, no more speeches? We've got to do something.
 Olly: All right - maybe I can sing a little song.
 Stan: That's a good idea - oh, say, that reminds me.
 Olly: What?
 Stan: I wish I'd brought my piano with me from America.
 Olly: You don't have to bring a pianner all the way from America. There's plenty here.
 Stan: I know - but I wish I'd brought mine.
 Olly: Now why in your wildest dreams do you wish you'd brought your piano with you?
 Stan: Well, you - you won't be mad if I tell you, will ya?
 Olly: Ooooh - N O ! You know I couldn't really get mad with you.
 Stan: No - - I'd rather not tell you... I'd rather. .
 Olly: Oh. . .
 Stan: No, I'd rather
 Olly: Come on now, why do you wish that you'd brought your piano with you?
 Stan: Well, I - I left our return tickets lying on top of it, and ... (cries)... I couldn't help it!....
 Olly: Ooooo - OH ! (The side fades with sounds of thumps, bumps and mayhem, punctuated by Stan's lamentations.)

SIDE TWO

Olly: Ladies and gentlemen, this is again Laurel and Hardy..
 Stan: in two parts !
 Olly: Will you shut up? You've done enough damage.
 Stan: What damage?
 Olly: You left our tickets behind in America and now we've got to SWIM back.

Stan: How far is it?

Olly: Oh - it's only three thousand miles.

Stan: Wall, that's not bad - it's only fifteen hundred miles each....

Olly: You wait till I introduce the orchestra and I'll take care of YOU....

Ladies and gentlemen, we leave behind a musical memory - a dance version of our theme song - which we hope you will enjoy. The dance of the "Ku - Ku's".

Stan: Goodbye !

(There follows a long dance band version of the "Dance of the Cuckoos".)

Following my article, I had some interesting correspondence from American readers, as a result of which I discovered that L & H enthusiasts there belong to a "tent" in the "Sons of the Desert" society, based on the film of the same name. The tents themselves are named after films: I illustrate that of the "Two Tars" and the lovely coat of arms by Al Kilgore. The Latin means "Two minds without a single thought." The Society was set up before Stan died and with his approval - he said it should possess a certain "half-assed dignity" - and is on the lines of the Baker Street Irregulars who celebrate Sherlock Holmes. There is, I believe, at least one tent in Britain. Jack Pfeifer of the "Two Tars" Tent told me (in 1977) that a headstone was being arranged for Olly's grave.

My original query, however - who wrote the music to the L & H short films? - remained unanswered with any certainty until I found that it had been dealt with in the magnificent book by McCabe, Kilgore and Bann. This is a large book crammed full with excellent stills from everything Laurel & Hardy made, with detailed casting and production lists to each film, including notes on the music.

From this, it can be seen that in most cases (I am omitting reference to the full-length musicals, incidentally, such as Fra Diavolo, etc.) the background music - which is heard in film after film, giving a kind of continuity - is by Marvin Hatley, who wrote "Ku-Ku", and LeRoy Shield. But, there are many more names to mention. In "Berth Marks" (1929) music was by William Axt, and Yellen & Ager. In "Men o' War" (1929) it was Axt again, also S. Williams. In "Perfect Day" (1929 : music added in 1936) not only Hatley and Shield, but Nat Shilkret too (and doubtless the Victor orchestra.) In "Night Owls" (1930), some by Harry von Tilzer. In "Brats" (1930 - on original track, which was later remade) some by Selver - Mitchell - Pollack; and most intriguingly "Rayaf - Waller - Sisson". On "Below Zero" we find mention of "Rayaf and Weller". Now, surely this must be Razaf (Andy) and Waller (Thomas "Fats") ?? But if so, which items ??

Others given include: Maud Nugent, - Lawler, Sam Grossman, Hal Roach, Alice Howlett, Ring - Hager, Frederic van Norman, Mel Kaufman, Jessie Deppen, E. Kilenyi, Arthur Lamb, H. W. Petrie, Will Marion Cook, Irving Berlin, Cole & Johnston, Abe Olman, M. Ewing, L. E. de Francesco, J. S. Zamecnik, Freita Shaw, H. Ingram, - Reisenfeld, F. S. Key and Warren - Green.

The book - and another recently published entitled "Stan" - throws some light on the comedians' private lives, which were not always happy and have been little mentioned hitherto. Stan, it seems, was virtually an intermittent alcoholic; while as a "ladies' man" he was five times married - I am uncertain if that includes his common-law wife Mae with whom he did a double act before teaming with Olly. His daughter Lois is pictured in the McCabe book. Fortunately he found contentment at the end of his life with Ida Kitaeva Raphael (married 1946). Olly too had problems, and was divorced from his first wife Myrtle: but here again, he found happiness at the end, in his marriage to Virginia Lucille Jones in 1940. His widow has said how much "Babe" got depressed and unhappy about his weight, albeit this was almost part of the act.

But whatever their human failings....how much more they have done - and continue to do - to cheer up humanity the world over, than we are ever likely to achieve ! and long may their disciples continue to pitch their "tents".....

OBITUARY

Ernest Bayly, Senior

How does one write an objective little tribute to one's own father?

He died on 2nd. June, 1981, unexpectedly, spending only his last 24 hours in bed at Christchurch Hospital and being in full possession of his faculties until almost the end. He was only two weeks away from his 80th birthday. His normal activity and mental alertness belied his age and what was his unfit condition.

Readers of the 'Talking Machine Review' will have been familiar with Father's handwriting upon the envelopes that conveyed their magazines, including the last sent out. He also collated the magazine pages and helped stick on the stamps.

Through him had come down to me an interest in records and talking machines, from my great-grandfather. My Father maintained his own interest right to the end. In fact he was interested in everything that every member of his family and my mother's relations did. In this respect I wish that everyone's father was like my own.

His interest in old records caused him to assist in the pure drudgery of compiling lists of records and indexes for them. As you will see in a forthcoming publication, he has assisted compiling a listing of the Columbia 'DX' series. Also in the future, he has made a card for each record in the HMV "B" series and the British Zonophone records. The immense size of this did not daunt him.

It has been a happy existence to have a Father who understood and shared an interest in this crazy hobby of ours. I only hope that he enjoyed living with me as much as I enjoyed having him around.

-Ernie Bayly

Editor's Comment: In Britain there seems to be no difficulty to see Laurel and Hardy's talking films, for the BBC television has repeat showings of them at fairly frequent intervals....sometimes in the 4 - 6 p.m. period, or rather late just before or after midnight. So with a little patience, one may see quite a large percentage.

At the time that "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" by L & H became a part of the "Pop Charts" a short while back, CBS issued an LP record including that song and other extracts from L & H films. It may still be available. The original Columbia DX 370 of L & H is very uncommon. It has been transferred to two LP's to my knowledge. It represents one "track" of the 2-LP set "The Golden Age of Comedy" (vol.1) on Murray Hill 900009 (of New York). It is also included on "Laurel & Hardy On The Air" (A collection of recordings made 1932 - 1959), on Sandy Hook-Radiola MR-1104. Other items on this latter is a radio sketch 'The Marriage of Stan Laurel' with Patsy Moran & Donald McBride (date unknown): Stanley reminisces on his early days, in his own home, January, 1959. The whole of side 2 is "This is Your Life" TV show of c.December, 1954, from the El Capitan Theatre, Hollywood. (This TV programme is also available from Sandy Hook on a Video cassette.) The January, 1959, reminiscences by Stan Laurel are also on Delos F25412 (In a collection called "Voices from the Hollywood Past"), but this time include the voice of the interviewer Tony Thomas, who "collected" his voices while working for the programme "Assignment" of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. All of the above LP's are from USA, but can be obtained in Britain through various importers.

William Pearson

It is my sad duty to report the death of William Pearson of Birmingham, who died on 9th. April, 1981, aged 73 years.

Mr. Pearson was well-known to collectors in Birmingham and indeed further afield. He was a genius at repairing phonographs and was often contacted by collectors for advice and spare parts. I would think that most current collections in the Midlands area contain certain machines and records that had at one time passed through his hands.

Sometime ago he told me of his early collecting days. From a boy he owned a Pathé phonograph. By 1924 he was collecting seriously, and soon discovered the excellence of the Edison Phonograph. This led to a devotion to Thomas Edison and the products of the Edison Phonograph Works. He assembled a superb collection of the finest Edison machines and records.

He would often recall his many pre-war visits to Mr. Watts of the London and Provincial Phonograph Company. Mr. Watts held large stocks of Edison goods at a time when they were no longer available "over the counter".

Mr. Pearson also related the days when one could buy a good O P E R A for £5. Incredible as it seems now, machines in less desirable condition were broken up for vital parts, including O P E R A S.

To those of us who knew him, he will be very much missed.
= John S. Dales

Your Editor Comments= Mr. Pearson really L O V E D the products of Mr. Edison and bestowed much care upon the Phonographs he owned. I shall always carry with me my surprise at hearing how wonderful the reproduction William Pearson had from his Edison Phonographs. It was no temporary thing. They always sounded better than anyone's, whether disc or cylinder types.

Sydney H. Carter

Sydney H. Carter, whose 60th. wedding anniversary we honoured in 1980, died early in 1981.

Sydney and his kindly wife Nellie worked very hard in their younger days to build up a business in stationery and radio (and parts), keeping long hours despatching orders after the shop closed.

In those days Sydney became an Edison enthusiast, having his original Phonograph right to the end. The early enthusiasm and ability to work hard was maintained right to his latter years.

After normal retirement age, his "second career" began. He was then a collector and entrepreneur for cylinders and spare parts to keep Edison Phonographs going. While he may have made "paper profits", it could never have repaid him for the hours put in - to the delight of many collectors thus able to restore their Phonographs, or

Paul G. A. H. Voigt

Paul Voigt, one of the early workers in radio and hi-fi died on 9th. February, 1981, suddenly, of a heart-attack. (His name was simplified to Voigt at some stage). Mr Voigt was a reader of this magazine and corresponded with us irregularly. Perhaps now he is best remembered for his loudspeakers, of advance design for 50 years ago. Only a few years ago I heard a couple of them connected to a modern stereo system and was very surprised to hear how very well they sounded, still; better than many smaller modern speakers. He also invented a system of electrical recording for Edison Bell records which avoided paying a royalty to Western Electric.

Mrs. Ida Voigt has sent a duplicated sheet with a few notes on her late husband, which we will copy here.

He was born in London (England) on 9th. December, 1901. After elementary education he went on to Dulwich College and then to London University College where he gained his B.Sc. in Electrical Engineering.

One day after his 20th birthday, when still a student, his first technical article was published in "Wireless World". In those days, the then editors of "W.W." believed that his idea of using a vacuum tube for simultaneously amplifying at r.f. and a.f. was original. This idea would halve the then high cost of production. (Such circuits are now called reflex, but unknown to Paul Voigt, to whom it was a genuinely original idea, had been invented earlier.)

1922 (until 1933), joined J. E. Hough Ltd., Edison Bell Works, London, where records and gramophones were made. He was to help the firm's radio side. He insisted on a specific agreement that he would remain owner of patents based on his own ideas. (Bright young man=Editor)

He realised that if the recording wax could be engraved with the accuracy with which the British Broadcasting Corporation modulated its carrier wave, better records obtain desirable cylinders.

An equally important work was his compilation (sometimes with Major Gerry Annand) of catalogues of Edison cylinders which he produced and distributed himself. These were very popular and were sought after worldwide, for they were as complete as possible - unbiased towards any type of music.

For many years Sydney worked to obtain excellence in electrical reproduction of cylinders, especially the Blue Amberols, often so warped and bumpy now. While we feel that perhaps Sydney's last experiments produced results a little lacking in the bass end of the recording, the rest was exceptionally clear and lacking bumpiness, enabling collectors to hear all the words of songs.

In his "second career", Sydney H. Carter was a pioneer and leader, to whom all we collectors owe a "vote of thanks" for his enthusiasm.

would result. He invented and / or designed - - microphones, amplifiers, transformers, cutters, pickups and monitoring speakers. (A list of his British Patents is given in the October, 1970, issue of the British Kinematography Sound & T.V. Journal, page 327.) He developed his monitoring speaker (tractrix horn) for cinema work.

1933 - 1950. Edison Bell having given up business due to the "recession"; Paul Voigt started his own business, VOIGT PATENTS LTD., to continue the cinema speaker. He also developed a high quality domestic corner speaker and a moving coil pick-up. The outbreak of World War II was a terrible set-back from which his Company never really recovered.

January, 1950, had ideas re the natures of gravity, electricity, etc.

April, 1950, came to Canada with the object of expanding the market for his loudspeakers on the North American continent, leaving the Company operating in England on a skeleton basis with diaphragm manufacture contracted out. His venture was unsuccessful.

1950 - 1960. In Canada, various activities including teaching electronics. During holidays and "between" jobs continued his scientific ideas.

1960 - 1969. In Canadian Federal Government Radio Regulations (Anti-interference section). A very satisfactory part of the time was in the Laboratory, developing test techniques, apparatus for direction-finding, etc. This gave him a better understanding of the relationship between electricity, magnetism and the electro-magnetic wave, etc.

1970 + + + + Retired. More time available to concentrate on trying to solve the riddles of the fundamentals.

LETTER

Editor's Comment= The writer of this article, Mr. Pengelly, has for many years been working on a system(s) of reproducing accurately, by electrical means, the music on Edison cylinders, especially the Blue Amberols. Like all who experiment in this way, he never claims that at anyone time that he has reached the "ultimate". I do not know how much work he has done on laterally-cut discs. In the March, 1980, issue of "The Gramophone" Mr. Pengelly deplored the bad re-copying of old cylinders & discs for LPs which chop off too much of the treble response in an erroneous aim to get rid of all 'hiss'. As I have expressed in these pages myself, I tend to "turn-up" the treble when playing 78 rpm records or their reissues. One tends to bring out a greater quality which makes one forget any hiss. A recent thought of mine was caused when playing some 1924 Autograph records (of Jesse Crawford and Milton Charles, electrically recorded) which look sparkingly new in condition, yet there is an unexpected amount of "hiss"..... I wondered, does the unexpected hiss on various records come from the original recording? By this I mean, was the hiss put on to the original wax by a blunted cutter, too much weight (or too little) on the cutting head, poor removal of "swarf", or even because the wax matrix was insufficiently heated? If "hiss" is on a disc we wish to play, there is nothing we can do, whatever its cause. This could apply to any make of disc. It does seem to me, that in Britain (and French R C A) record companies are paying more attention when reissuing 78 rpm discs on to LP. I would agree with Mr. Pengelly that too many of the very poor transfers do originate in U.S.A., a country where ANY record should have sufficient sales to cover any amount of care. (I can think of only one mitigating factor in that American replay amplifiers may have a higher treble factor built in. I do not know, never having used American equipment.) Having written that, you will see in the Record Reviews section I mention an excellent reissue by (American) Sunbeam records of songs by Bert Williams, the Ziegfeld Follies star, which demonstrated attention to the original.

We now give you a letter from Mr. Pengelly and I wholly endorse his condemnation of Mr. W. D. Storm's proposal that some international standard should be imposed for the transfer of "78's" (and cylinders) to LP. I would only comment that the criterion should be to get the most from the original, and that needs no set of rules. But I would impose one condition, that nobody appears to have bothered about. ALL RECORDING ENGINEERS SHOULD UNDERGO CLINICAL TESTS TO ENSURE THAT BEFORE UNDERTAKING THE WORK THEY ACTUALLY HAVE EARS WITH THE FULL FREQUENCY RANGE. I do not say that out of rudeness or sarcasm. I have never been to the home of a recording engineer, but what I hear in some homes makes me wonder how people accept poor quality (and this also applies to TV)..... But an Editor is not intended to go on at such length !...!

Dear Ernie & Readers of the Talking Machine Review,

On page 1707 you mention your philosophy on "transfers" - a subject dear to my heart. I think our thoughts are similar and perhaps the expansion of mine might be of interest to you.

I'm all for making transfers either from early discs or cylinders as "wide open" as possible. I think it best to leave the listener (me) how much bass or treble (hiss) he wants by the use of his own tone controls. I do object to some transfer engineer deciding how much "top" is good for the listener (me). Of course, there's no need to be extravagant as far as "top" is concerned, to include a frequency above which no signal is included.

In the main though, most transfers of old material - especially acoustic recordings - that I have heard on LP have had the top cut drastically below the level at which there is signal to be heard. In U.S.A. especially, the philosophy seems to be cut the hiss at all costs so that performances lose the vitality that are inherent in the upper frequencies. Recently though these are being represented - most especially on British Rubini discs and hence my piece in "The Gramophone".

In particular there are more high frequencies captured in the vertically-cut method than the lateral. (Editor asks = Is this because cylinders revolve at a FASTER SPEED? I presume you mean Edison cylinders, for I have never been thrilled by either Pathé cylinders or discs)

I am particularly disturbed that at the meeting of the Association for Recorded Sound Collections, William D. Storm of Syracuse proposed international re-recording standards so that all transfers would be done to the one standard. This surely ignores that the early recording engineers were all highly individualistic with their own jealously guarded secrets as to cutting heads, etc. etc. To produce response curves for the two mediums of cylinder and disc is surely to fossilise the whole business of transfer to LP.

At the above meeting William D. Storm (held in Ottawa in May, 1980) of Audio Archives, Syracuse University further propounded the idea of re-creating on LPs performances as heard by the people at the time of their issue - on contemporary equipment. Since they would have listened on equipment ranging from a GEM to an IDELIA (or even something really poor) I find this idea quaint in the extreme. (Editor comments: I am sure that producers of such records would quickly find themselves bankrupt from lack of sales to the general public.)

Certainly one response curve for old discs and one for cylinders would simplify the problem for archives dealing with the transfer of thousands of discs and cylinders to tape but it should be recognised as only a second best solution to the problem. If you haven't listened to the Rubini Carusos I referred to in my letter to 'The Gramophone' I think you will find them a revelation and commented on as such by other reviewers in other publications.

As for the digital restorations by R C A of Caruso using the Stockham process, here again the limited frequency range for me dulls the performance. Indeed some reviewers have advised turning up the treble controls on them. (Editor comments: I do not own any of the "digital" Carusos, but a friend brought his to my house. I definitely agree that some great treble lift is required. By using my "Sound Shaper" to give this lift, these Carusos certainly sounded fine. One could obtain some high frequencies without undue hiss. But, one should not need to spend, say, £200 just to hear computerised Caruso records sounding as they should. The fuller frequency range should have been restored to the disc at the mastering stage. Again, one has doubts about the hearing of the recording engineers. Or, if these digital Carusos are aimed at Mr. General Public owning just the average record player or music centre, has that Mr. G. Public become so accustomed to poor quality playback that he does not notice that Mr. Caruso has been insulted?)

Finally, can someone who has heard the expensive Art Shifrin cylinderreplay system in action report upon it? A rumour has been heard that the replay has a will of its own and is temperamental. Best wishes, Joe Pengelly.

Editor comments = Since typing all of the foregoing, I had a very pleasurable visit from Peter Adamson of Saint Andrews, Scotland, and our conversation naturally quickly came round to electrical reproduction of records (78 rpm). Briefly, Peter explained to me, who is most untechnical on electronic matters, that those of us finding it necessary to increase the treble response of our amplifiers when playing 78 rpm discs are doing so because our ears are telling us that modern amplifiers are unsuitable to play 78 rpm discs without correction. In other words, recent amplifiers are designed to play recent records which have quite different characteristics.

BUT this does not necessarily mean that the computerised re-recordings are to the correct standards, for one assumes that they will have been made after the computer has taken modern amplifiers into consideration.

INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE COMPANY,

May 1901 to June 1903

part 2

Litigation against the Zon-o-phone had already been under way by the Deutsche Grammophon A. G. before Prescott ever set up business in Berlin, and although an action to stop the Zon-o-phone being advertised as produced under the joint patents of the Universal Talking Machine Company, the National Gram-o-phone Corporation, the American Graphophone Company and the Columbia Phonograph Company, General, had failed in a lower Court in Germany, an Appeal Court reversed the decision and the International Zonophone Company was enjoined from claiming such protection, although none of the advertisements had yet made such a claim, in Phonographische Zeitschrift.

Deutsche Grammophon A. G. instituted new litigation with an appeal against granting a patent to the Zon-o-phones, as then constructed, and they also were complaining the Petit / Prescott patent for double-sided recorded discs.

By the second week in September, the International Zonophone Company was able to publish its first of German-made records in both the seven-inches size and the new 10-inches "Grosse Platten", the earlier "Concert" size records being the new size of 9-inches diameter which had been launched in America earlier in the year and were first described there as "Superba" discs having a catalogue series commencing at number 500. The new "Concert" or "Grand" size records from the Berlin factory commenced numbering from X-1, which was of Franz Zögen, tenor, singing an aria from Flotow's "Martha". The seven-inch standard size records commenced at plain number 1, which was of Ewald Brückner, baritone singing "Jedem das Seine" by G. Preyer.

In the U S A, the Sole Sales Agency for the Zon-o-phone product was with the National Gram-o-phone Corporation of New York, which company had formerly been used by Frank Seaman to distribute the Berliner Gramophone and discs, for which he was the Sole Sales Agent (except for Washington, D.C.) throughout the United States, but which they no longer handled as Frank Seaman's supplies had been terminated by the Berliner Gramophone Company consequent upon his actions which resulted from a power struggle which had been waged for a number of years, actions which the Berliner Gramophone Company wished to see terminated. It was in the same September in which the first German Zon-o-phone Schallplatten were launched that the National Gram-o-phone Corporation in New York was petitioned into bankruptcy, on the 6th., in the Brooklyn Superior Court, at the suit of the Company's creditors. The creditors' attorney, representing stockholders accounting for 1,000 shares, said that some stockholders had received their dividends while others had not, and that the conditions prevailing in the company were "complicated". To save the business from ruin it was advised that a trustee be appointed. As the Zon-o-phone products sold by the National Gram-o-phone Corporation were manufactured by, or for, the Universal Talking Machine Company, and as the stockholders in "Universal" were mainly the same stockholders in National Gram-o-phone, it was the attorney's opinion that the National's business could be best carried on by the Universal Talking Machine Company and that the stockholders in the "National" would therefore have to receive Universal shares to the total value of the bankrupt company's shares.

In reporting this state of affairs, which had been published by the "Washington Post", the Phonographische Zeitschrift mentioned that the two companies referred to were in no way connected with the European Gramophone Companies.

In the same issue was an item on the new "Large Gramophone Discs" which, in translation reads:- "On the model of the grand cylinders, the Gramophone has now also introduced enlarged discs with a considerably increased speed of revolution and thereby has achieved a significant increase in volume of sound. The extension of the wavy lines in the phonographic register achieved by this increased speed of particular advantage to complicated recorded recitals such as duets, trios and orchestral performance. The International Zonophone Company, which has recently started manufacturing in Germany, has also adopted these large discs. (25. Sept. 1901)

The contract with the St. Petersburg Agency was now two days old and the business had been established in Berlin for nearly four months.

Up to this point, the black labels on the Zon-o-phone Schallplatten, which were printed in gold with a surrounding gold band near the circumference of the label had borne the names of "New York" and "Berlin" near the spindle hole. Soon after the Russian agency was established the labels were printed with the addition of "St. Petersburg", still with the outside gold band.

The October, 1901, advertisement of the International Zonophone Company depicted the whole discs of the "Concert-Schallplatten" and the "Gewöhnliche Schallplatten" and the two cities' names were clearly visible. The advertisement read, in translation, ; "Grosse Zonophone Concert-Schallplatten. Schallplatten "Goldetiquette" - These new and large Concert Schallplatten are twice as loud, twice as long, and twice as natural, with respect to sound, compared to the standard Zonophone or Gramophone discs. - This is a most important improvement on the small discs. These large Zonophone records can be played on any Zonophone or Gramophone - Catalogues of our latest German recordings, in large and standard size, from our Berlin Laboratory are available on request." The Zonophon G. m. b. H. was not mentioned in this advertisement.

It was in November, 1901, that Nicole Frères, Ltd. of Ely Place, London, began dealing in Zonophone machines, discs and accessories, previously having advertised as stockists of the Gramophone. They were also suppliers of Edison Phonographs and records. A "Standard" Model Zonophone was depicted at £5 - 10s. and records were priced 2s. 6d each. There was no mention of two sizes being available, but they did have fully illustrated lists available. There was no mention of the company being the British Agents for the Zon-o-phone products, and the Symphonium Company, of London, also began to advertise as stockists of Zon-o-phones. By December, 1901, Nicole Frères had the 10-inches size discs for sale, which they styled "Grand" in their advertisements, and Nicole Frères' stocks were commented upon by the 7th. December issue of "Bazaar, Exchange and Mart" in the following manner:- "Every winter of recent years has seen some fresh improvement in talking-machines, and the latest and most wonderful development is the "Zon-o-phone". This is a talking-machine with flat records, which are specially made so as to reproduced any sound with a most clear and distinct effect. They may be had either to run by clockwork or to turn by hand, and the latter, though known as the "Baby", and recommended for children, is, we think, by no means a toy, for the reproduction is very clear, and the hand-power motor is so arranged with a governor that, at whatever rate the crank is turned, the turn-table revolves at the one speed. The price of this, with 200 needles, is £2 -2s., the Standard records being 2s. 6d. each. Other prices in these machines are £5 - 10s., £7 - 10s. (The "Drawing Room" model in ornamental cabinet with glass sides, able to play the 10-inches discs - F. A.) and £12 - 12s., the last-named being the "London Grand", specially designed for the new Grand Records, double size, at 5s., but also takes the Standard size. It is fitted with a superior brass trumpet and special table stand. An Automatic Penny-in-the-slot Zon-o-phone, at 8 guineas, is provided with 400 needles, & a fine oak case with a Yale safety lock-drawer. Dust-proof record cases, that will hold 25 records, with index and numbered division for each disc, are 6s., or covered, with a strong carrying-strap, for Grand Records, 10s., Trumpets are from 5s. to £5-5s. extra needles being 1s. per packet of 200, and as each needle will run four small records, this supply would last a long time." A complete Nicole Frères, Ltd. catalogue, printed about this time shows the carrying case for large records at only 8s. 6d.

Although Zon-o-phone products had been coming into Britain since 1899, directly imported from America, Nicole Frères, Ltd. and a number of other British dealers, after May, 1901, could obtain their supplies only from the International Zonophone Company.

It is significant that the first of the two British Patents awarded to Emile Berliner, the rights of which belonged to the Gramophone and Typewriter, Ltd., expired in November 1901!!

At this point the new American-recorded 9-inches discs, with the 7-inches, were being sold, and I see no reason why the Universal Talking Machine Company should not have continued delivering to Prescott in Berlin, as he was contracted to purchase a given amount of merchandise from Universal each year, to the value of $60,000.

"Die besten der Welt". This was the slogan in German of the Anglo-Italian Commerce Company, and it appeared in Italian on the reverses of their Disco Zonofonos, but in January, 1902, when advertising their "Laute und Original Walzen", with the same slogan, and their new complete catalogue of cylinders, there was no mention of themselves being agents for the International Zonophone Company, which would appear to be remiss of them were they, by then, acting in that capacity for the Berlin Company. About their December advertisement it was written, "... These advantages of the Italian language are of double importance for the Phonograph and, hence, the art of recording has been particularly well developed in respect of phonographic records of Italian singers, both men and women. The Anglo-Italian Commerce Company of Milan, which has just published its new cylinder catalogue for 1902, is the firm which gives great prominence to Italian recordings. The catalogue, although in Italian, is perfectly understandable to a German and gives a very wide choice of original Italian recordings. Every collection of cylinders will be most agreeably enriched by this, and so all phonograph dealers will find that the addition of such cylinders to their stocks will be an excellent way of increasing sales".

THE WIDENING OF THE ZON-O-PHONE RECORDS REPERTOIRE

At the beginning of April, 1902, eleven months after its founding, the International Zonophone Company, for the first time, mentioned that their recorded repertoire included German, Italian, French, Russian, English and American recordings. As far as can be ascertained, there were still only the Zonophon G.m.b.H and St. Petersburg agencies in existence, and it is not known whether they, at that time, were at all responsible for the contracting of artists to record, as were the agencies founded in the latter part of 1902. In other words, it could be that the International Zonophone Company itself still arranged its recordings in and outside of Germany, and, for a fact, Dan Smoot, the chief recording engineer recounts travelling to St. Petersburg to make recordings, but as he wrote his account in July, 1904, it is not known whether he was with Zonophone or Odeon at the time. He said he had also recorded in Milan, Brussels, Amsterdam, Berlin and London, recording centres of both companies. An indication of his work-load is given by the fact that he said he had just made about three hundred recordings for Odeon, at the time of writing, and expected to record from five to six hundred more. He was recording in London at the time.

If we accept that the Zon-o-phone catalogue numbers equate with matrix numbers, at the time of recording, or even accept that the numbers were given to the discs which were passed for issue, then it is logical to assume that the lower the number, the earlier the discs, as the process ing would be going on in Berlin as the waxes arrived from the various recording locations.

Working from this basis, one can deduce that the first recordings were made in Berlin, which is fact in any case, and they cover numbers X1 to X75 and 1 to 123. Our data is then wanting for information, and it is not known at what number the first batch of German recordings ceased, but we come to the first known Russian record at X94 and the last at X147, a Vialtseyva recording, but as we only have details of eight Russian discs within that block, we are uncertain that all the numbers between X94 (or lower) and X147 (or higher) were entirely used for Russian recordings taken in St. Petersburg. In the seven-inches size, we know of no Russian recordings at all. Karl Nebe on 123 is the highest-known of the first German batch and then we have a "blanks" block from 124 to 353, some of the numbers of which would have been used in the Russian expedition. On the return from St. Petersburg, a few more German recordings were taken, on numbers 354 to 411 in the seven inch discs, and between X162 and X177 on the 10-inch.

The next expedition would seem to have been to Milan, where X178 to X223 and 412 to 570 (or 571) were devoted to Italian recordings. Incidentally, Daniel Smoot recalled that while travelling by train back from Milan to Berlin, the carriage lighting went out and a distinguished artist travelling in the same carriage with her retinue, brought out some night lights - it was Sarah Bernhardt (who recorded on Disque Zon-o-phones), but Smoot did not say in which year this occurred.

Italian Records, within these groups are known, with black labels and which have the gold surrounding band and the names of "New York", "Berlin" and perhaps "St Petersburg" around the spindle hole. "Milan", it seems, never appeared around the hole on the labels. The discs have also been seen with plain backs as well as with the A I C C impression on the reverse. I do not know if the plain backs were used for sale before A I C C became an accredited Agent of the International Zonophone Company, or if plain backs were used for sale directly to other dealers, with the A I C C - impressed backs delivered only to the A I C C when that Company were the agents for Italy through their offices in Milan and Genoa. The chronological order of appearance of the different reverses used on Zonophone discs is still an area where ignorance reigns supreme.

The next venue for recording was London, and the numbers of the records ran from X224 to X272 (or X271), and from 571 (or 572) to 708, for both sizes of discs, and this session probably took place before the Coronation of King Edward VII, as it is only in the next London session that a series of comedy recordings, by Charles Norton, that reference to that Coronation appears.

Brussels was the next location for recordings, with numbers X272 (or X273) to X290 used (with the next 17 numbers unaccounted for) and numbers 709 to 778, some of these recordings being in the French language. The next 167 numbers are unaccounted for, except that three Hungarian recordings are known by Juliska, but as some of her recordings had numbers duplicating some of the early German numbers. These three Hungarian recordings could also well be the second use of numbers, the original use of which remains to be discovered.

A third batch of German recordings was next, numbers running from X308 to X328 (or X329), and from 946 to 1049 with three Hungarian recordings known, which again could well have been replacement recordings for the original German entries. The data is taken from the 1903 catalogue. (Could the Hungarian artist have been performing in Berlin and have recorded there= Editor?)

The second London session was next, with numbers ranging from X329 (or X330) to X353 (or X354), and, in the seven-inch size, from 1050 to 1135 (or 1134). This was the batch which included "Farmer Giles" experiences in London during the Coronation of Edward VII, on the seven-inch issues, performed by Charles Norton.

The second batch of Belgian records followed, with numbers running from X354 (or X355) to X409, and from 1135 (or 1136) to 1284. This was followed by the second batch of Italian recordings with numbers X410 to X499 and 1285 to 1441, a few of which were sung in Spanish.

AMERICAN ZON-O-PHONE RECORDS

With American recordings advertised in the International Catalogue, by April, 1902, the numbering of the European 10-inch discs had to be interrupted and another number series begun because the American Zon-o-phones had numbers which would have duplicated any further progression beyond X499, for the 9-inch series of American Zon-o-phone Records had begun at 500, and those selected from this series for issue in Europe, went into the International Catalogue, given X prefixes although the "X" was not impressed on the label-less discs.

The lowest number in the new series, discovered so far, is X1005 and this number begins a mixed-bag of recordings, up to X1173, which includes South American, Spanish, Italian and German recordings, with two sessions by Ian Colquhoun, which he recorded in Berlin while on his honeymoon. (!) If one artist could be called to Berlin (in this case from Paris) to record, so could others, and without definite information, the actual recording location of artists, outside of those arranged by Agencies, once they were formed, is a matter of speculation. The city name after an artist's name on the record label or in the catalogue is no guide, as this name conveys only where the artist's reputation lay. As an example, Colquhoun's Berlin recordings, still have "London" after his name.

X1174 was the first number in a third Belgian batch ending at X1199, and this was paralleled in the seven inch size with 1442 to 1499; and now another impasse had been reached in that the American Zon-o-phone Records on sale in Europe bore American numbers which had begun at 1500. The problem of the seven-inch size numbering was more complicated than the ten-inch size, because there had been a multifarious series of numbers for the seven-inch American records in the previous three years, numbers in ranges of 5,000 ; 6,000 ; 9,000 and into the 10,000's, and so it was into the 10,000 series that the European Zon-o-phones continued the seven-inch numbering after reaching 1499. The lowest known European record being 10,055, which is the first in a batch of Hungarian records by Juliska reaching 10072, with two interruptions by de Souza of Portugal.

How far the International Zonophone Company numbering had progressed by April 1902, is not known, nor what American numbers were already in the International catalogue. And still only the Zonophon G.m.b.H. was mentioned as an Agent, with other "Agencies Wanted Everywhere".

A new soundbox, carrying German Patents Nos. 16379 and 165574, was being advertised and Deutsche Grammophon A. G. issued a "Warnung", stating their patents were being infringed.

"IMPRESSO ESPECIALENTE PARA CASA EDISON, RIO de JANEIRO"

Having stated that the International Zonophone Company did not number any of its 10-inch discs with numbers in the range of X500 to X1000 among the discs put on sale in Europe, there is evidence that the Company did use numbers in that range for sale in South America, and an example is known from a double-sided disc made for the Brazilian Agency, Casa Edison ; obviously another concern similar to Nicole Frères Ltd., in that they were dealing, or had dealt, in Edison Phonographic products. This was the Agency which had the first double-sided Disco Zon-o-phones. The example known to me has a blue-labelled Disco Zonofono on one side (a Caruso recording), and an orange Disco Zon-o-phone on the reverse; which dates the pressing no earlier than mid-1903. We know, however, that this South American House was selling double-sided discs twelve months prior to this. The orange-labelled side had printed upon it, "Executada de la Banda de Casa Edison", which strongly suggests that, as far as Brazil was concerned, the reservation of the orange labels for celebrity artists did not apply there. The number of this side was X673, and unlike the American 9-inch record of the same number, did carry the 'X' prefix as its matrix number. The label also bore the inscription that forms the heading to this paragraph.

So, by mid-1902, the International Zonophone Company was already pressing double-sided discs for a Portuguese-speaking public and had established the basis of its European national catalogues, but, being unable to date the issued catalogue numbers, it is still impossible to say whether there was yet any French or Italian Agencies established.

THE UNIVERSAL TALKING MACHINE MANUFACTURING COMPANY, NEW YORK.

This new company had been formed in December, 1901, by G. H. Robinson, a major stockholder in the National Gramo-o-phone Corporation which had been petitioned into bankruptcy in the previous September, and this new Company became the manufacturer of the Zon-o-phone machines in America with the Universal Talking Machine Company taking on the role of the Sole Sales Agent, which had been the province of the National Gram-o-phone Corporation before it was forced into bankruptcy, a role the Universal company had been carrying on since then, and which alone enjoyed the the Licence to operate its business from the American Graphophone Company and Columbia Phonograph Company, General.

In Germany, the International Zonophone Company, on 1st April, 1902, was officially granted its authorisation to carry on its business in Prussia, signed by Herr Lohmann for the Minister for Trade and Commerce of the Royal Government at Potsdam and Berlin.

From the 'Phonographische Zeitschrift' of 27th. August, 1902 (in translation) :-

"New Zonophones. A large number of new types of disc talking machines will be exhibited by the Zonophone Company at the Leipzig Fair. Both the carefully finished and practical design of these machines, as well as the impeccable reproduction, has already made many friends for the new Zonophone, and it is greatly welcomed that the above mentioned firm has seen fit to market inexpensive models in addition to the existing popular ones. The soundness of the older types also guarantees impeccable operation in the cheaper models. The Zonophone disc catalogue has also been considerably extended. At the Company's Berlin laboratory, new recordings of the most popular artistes are being made every day and, in addition to clarity of reproduction, particular importance is being attached to the complete elimination of any background noise with the new recordings. A large variety of different models and discs will be willingly demonstrated to visitors to the Leipzig Fair, so that we can warmly recommend a visit to the Exhibition to all prospective clients."

The company itself, at this time, found it necessary to publish the following "Warnung", which, translated from the German:- "Warning! The great success with which our "Zonophone No.25" have met, since their introduction, has induced a few unscrupulous dealers to substitute inferior imitations of our equipment, with makeshift contrivances; however none bears our name "International Zonophone Company", nor our trade word. These imitations can easily be recognised by any dealer by their defective finish; they are, on the whole, lighter in weight and, where our machines use sound parts punched from steel in order to guarantee maximum stability, the imitations use soft brass parts. Moreover they are somewhat smaller in all their parts than our Zonophone instruments.

We have lost no time in taking the necessary steps to proceed against such dealers in the most vigorous manner and will also continue to take legal action against anyone concerning whom we can obtain proof that he is manufacturing or distributing imitations of our instruments.

The name "Zonophone" is our registered trademark and the Zonophone instrument is protected by the Patent Office for our benefit. We hereby warn everybody not to allow themselves to be sold cheap imitations and request that any machine which does not carry our firm's label to be declined." - International Zonophone Company, 71 Ritterstrasse, Berlin.

STILL NO AGENCIES

By August, 1902, the International Zonophone Company was fifteen months old and was to enjoy but ten months more of an independent existence, and judging from its 13th. August advertisement it still had not enlarged its number of two Agencies. In translation the advertisement read:- "ZON-O-PHONE - Zonophones for everybody and at every price from 40 Marks to 250 Marks. Illustrated Catalogues with descriptions of all our instruments and lists of prices, free. Our disc catalogue contains over 3,000 instrumental and vocal numbers in almost all civilised languages. Agents should contact us about conditions. Suitable Agents Wanted Everywhere. For all foreign countries, the International Zonophone Company, Filiale, 71 Ritterstrasse, Berlin. Sole Representatives for Germany, Austria and Hungary, Zonophon GmbH, 63 Ritterstrasse, Berlin. While at the Leipzig Fair, meet us at the Hotel de Russie, 19 Peterstrasse."

On the day that this advertisement appeared, the third European Agent signed his contract at the Berlin headquarters. This was Mr. Stibbe of Amsterdam, who became the Dutch Agent for Holland and its colonies.

If one looks at the figure of 3,000 discs, and includes among that number about 800 American Zon-o-phone Records as part of the total, for 760 American discs are definitely known to have formed part of the International Catalogue, one is left with 2,200 discs from European recordings. Having accounted for the third Belgian batch of recordings earlier, and knowing that the next batch of records, in numerical order, of 10-inch diameter discs is of a large French order, and knowing that a French Agency had yet to be appointed, it is worth adding up the number of European-manufactured records which should have been issued if all the numbers had been allotted, and this works out that there were, say, 500 low-numbered X-prefixed 10-inch discs, plus X1000 to X1199, a total of 700, and in the seven-inch size there had been the 1,500 low-numbered records and others ranging from 10,000 to 10,054, which latter remain unknown, making 800 + 700 + 1,500 + 54, which gives us at least 3,000 discs. This is all highly speculative, and it may be that the American-recorded disc did not figure in the total of 3,000-plus at August 1902. In that case more European records were out and the seven-inch size could well have made up the total to 3,000 as there were yet still many numbers to be used before the first large French block in that size. But read further on for reference to the numbering of Zon-o-phone discs.

THE SHAH OF PERSIA'S ZON-O-PHONE CONCERT

My attempts to give a date for when particular parts of the International Zon-o-phone Catalogue were first issued, that is to say, with various "national" blocks of numbers contained therein, have so far proved fruitless, in the main. The "Farmer Giles" records would not have appeared before Coronation Week, Ian Colquhoun's label-less records were recorded while he was on his honey moon, but I do not know when that was. (?1902=Editor) So, I was hoping that the list of records heard by the Shah of Persia on 1st. June, 1902, might give some indication of what high-numbered Zon-o-phone Records were then extant, as it was highly probable that some of the latest from the presses would have been demonstrated, but unfortunately no catalogue numbers were given with the list of records which were played over. With some investigation, I have been able to ascribe some of the catalogue numbers to the records, but only on a speculative basis, as the size of the records was not given, although I would imagine that only the Concert size discs would have been played to a Shah. Also there may have been recorded duplications of the titles about which we still know nothing.

The concert of Zon-o-phone Records which entertained the Shah, was given in Berlin under the auspices of the German Agents, the Zonophon GmbH, whose director was Hermann Maassen. The programme given was: -

1. Overture 'William Tell', Orchestra (possibly Victor Herbert's Band. 9-inch X508)
2. Sternbanner, Amerikanischer National-Marsch. (possibly Victor Herbert's Band. 9-inch X654)
3. Brautcher aus 'Lohengrin' (Bridal March) (possibly Victor Herbert's Band. 10-inch X0122)
4. Potpourri aus 'Hugenotter' (possibly V. Herbert's Band on 10-inch X0124)
5. Serenaden Walzer (? La serenata, waltz? Then possibly Hager's Orchestra on 10-inch X0118)
6. Santiago, walzer (possibly Hager's Orchestra on 9-inch X-647; alternative no. 5664)
7. Polonaise aus 'Mignon' (possibly Hager's Orch. on 10-inch. X0111)
8. Jagdscene - Hunting Scene (possibly Zonophone Orchestra, New York. 9-inch X522)
9. Heil dir im Siegerkranz - Kirchenglockenspiel (Untraced)

10. Militärische Signale - piston solo
(possibly W. Paris Chambers on X613 or X614)
11. Largo al Factotum 'Barbiere di Siviglia' sung by Signor Francisco - Possibly 9-inch. X458
12. Alte Gewand, 'La Boheme' sung by Sgr Brancaleoni, bass mit Orch. - possibly X186
13. Zieh' die Jacke an, 'Pagliacci', sung by Signor Mieli tenor mit orch. - possibly on X191
14. Kennst du das Land, 'Mignon' sing by Signora Mattiuzzi mezzo mit orch. - possibly on X201.
15. Casta Diva, 'Norma' - sung by Signora Sambo. Soprano
mit orch. - possibly on X210

The only crumb of comfort from this list, if my allocations prove to be correct, is that it can now be affirmed that the specially made 10-inch diameter recordings of Fred Hager's Orchestra and of the Band of the 22nd Regiment of New York conducted by Victor Herbert were already in the Berlin presses by May, 1902, as "Reproduced in Germany" was moulded into the reverses of these discs, which appear not to have been pressed in America for the Universal Talking Machine Company, the sales outlet for America's domestic Zon-o-phone Records.

HER MASTER'S VOICE

I hope that I do not have to describe the "His Master's Voice" picture trade-mark to anyone. It became known as the "World's Most Famous Trade Mark" and Eldridge Johnson had made use of it in advertising matter before the Victor Talking Machine Company was founded in the U S A in 1901, and it was already a trade mark registered to Emile Berliner.

The Gramophone and Typewriter, Ltd. had made little use of the picture which was one of their registered trade marks in the British Isles, the "Inscribing Angel" being the trademark in general use.

Other than the use of the word "Zonophone", and the use of its corporate name, the International Zonophone Company had not made use of a pictorial trademark until November, 1902, in which month the Company began to use a picture which, being evocative of the 'His Master's Voice' picture, I personally think of as 'H E R Master's Voice'. The picture shows a table top upon which is a Zon-o-phone machine having a cabinet with bevelled glass panels on its sides, and this faces in the same direction as the forward of the girl's hand is a packet of 200 Zon-o-phone needles. There is no caption to the picture.

This picture was used by Nicole Frères, Ltd. who were still stockists of Zonophone products in 1902, and their advertisement read; "Latest and Best Talking Machine - The Zonophone. Standard Model with Concert Sound Box - £4-4-0. Drawing Room Model 7, Concert Sound Box - £5-10-0. Concert Zonophone with 27 inch horn and stand £7-10-0. Small records 2s. each. Large records 4s. Write for price list, record lists, or tune lists sent post free."

It was in this November that the International Zonophone Company began advertising in the "British Trade Journal", where the 'Her Master's Voice' picture was also in evidence. The British Trade Journal was issued for businessmen who had an interest in exporting from, or importing into, Britain any line of merchandise known. The Zonophone advertisements in this periodical are the only ones I have seen printed in English by the International Zonophone Company of Berlin. This first advertisement of 1st. November, 1902, is shown below.

An Autumn Machine Catalogue had been published, and the machines contained therein were referred to in a 19th November German advertisement from the International Zonophone Company, "The new 'De Luxe' Concert Zonophone No. 75 plays one concert disc at one winding. The new 'De Luxe' Concert Zonophone No. 90 plays two and a half concert discs at one winding. The new 'De Luxe' Concert Zonophone No. 110 plays four full concert discs at one winding, or approximately twice the number of small discs. The new Zonophone Autumn catalogue contains entirely new Zonophone models at all prices. Illustrated catalogues and price lists will be sent free of charge. Our discs catalogue represents more than 3,500 numbers, including instrumental and vocal music in all European languages, to which will be added, before Christmas, another 2,000 numbers of German, French, Italian and Russian music. Lists of discs will, on request, be sent free of charge. Agents are requested to apply to us for conditions. Under the trumpet is a device for stacking records, consisting of a cruciform holding spaced rods. In the picture, thirteen records are stacked. At the edge of the table, a young female child looks with contemplative air into the horn. In the space between her arm and body is a small cat, also looking towards the horn, with tail erect. Slightly Zonophone GmbH, 63 Ritterstrasse, Berlin." An illustration of one of the Neue Luxus-Concert-Zonophones carried the caption, "None genuine without the registered trade mark 'Zonophone'".

From this advertisement, it will be seen that the International business was also being carried out from an address in Vienna, and the promise of 2,000 additional discs by Christmas was a reflection upon the new Agency of Charles et Jacques Ullmann, which had been contracted in the previous month in Paris. It is probable that the Compagnie Belge du Zonophone was set up at this time as well, and the Anglo-Italian Commerce Company had probably become the Italian Agents at about the same time.

The June 1903 catalogue shows that once the higher numbers were in use with a large influx of French recordings, the pattern of processing parallel sessions of seven-inches and ten inches masters recorded by the recording expert, or experts, who travelled around the cities of Europe engaging the artists for the International Zonophone Co., had given way to a more random processing of masters in Berlin. Four recording engineers were, allegedly in the field in the last months of the company's existence as an independent company.

THE LAST SIX MONTH'S OF INDEPENDENCE

The Zonophone advertisement in the "British Trade Journal" for December, 1902, differed from the first one of November, although my so-called "H E R Master's Voice" illustration was still used, and which, incidentally, was also used on the record envelopes but from when is not yet known.

The English December advertisement proclaimed: - "The Zonophone reproduces a loud, clear and natural tone, better than the Phonograph, Graphophone or old style Gramophone. Reproduces Band, Orchestra, Instrumental solos Singing and Talking Records at your pleasure. Records are indestructible, of hard composition. Do not break in transportation or wear out with use. Not affected by climate or moisture. Every home should possess a Zonophone for entertainment; the ideal machine for exhibitors. To introduce the Zonophone we will send one No.25 Zonophone and 12 Assorted Records, with Freight, Duty, and all charges prepaid, to any place in the world for 110 Marks, or £5-10s. Catalogues of Machines, Supplies, and lists of records free. Agents wanted evrywhere. Write for terms."

With the new year of 1903 came the establishment of Ullmann's Swiss Agency and by, 18th March, the International Zonophone Company had moved to new premises at No. 73 Mühlenstrasse, Berlin.

The March advertisement, in German, bore this new address, along with the Vienna, and Zonophon GmbH agency address, but, up to this time, the so-called "H E R Master's Voice" illustration had not been in use with the German advertisements. There was a new machine out: "ZONOPHONE MODEL 15K - with polished and nickel plated horn with metal elbow." "Please ask for our latest Zonophone catalogue which contains numerous Zonophone Instruments of the latest design, as well as our latest international disc catalogue. The latter contains up-to-date recordings of the most famous opera singers, including many numbers by the best known and most outstanding music virtuosos in Berlin, Vienna, Paris, Milan & Moscow. The repertoire of our Zonophone discs has, in recent months, been increased by such recordings to twice its former volume. Agents are requested to apply to us for conditions."

"Only genuine if incorporating the registered 'Zonophone' mark", was the repeated warning. Five days after this advertisement appeared, the Ullmann business in London signed its contract to become the British Agent for the Zonophone products. Mr. Emil Rink was the manager at Butler Street, London E C. Three-and-a-half years later, when managing the Odeon Disc Record Company in London, he remarked that it was he and the Ullmanns in London who first introduced the products of the International Zonophone Company into England, which was untrue, even if they were the first to become the British Agents. The advertisements of Nicole Frères prove otherwise.

With the British Agency established there were to be just two months and two weeks of further independence. Two thousand records had increased the International catalogue before, and for, Christmas, and in the ensuing two-and-a-half months another one thousand recordings had augmented it still further, enabling the company to claim their catalogue had doubled. The increase in recording could only have been as a result of the establishment of the new-type Agencies, which were made responsible for contracting the artists to be recorded. These were the new Austrian, French, Belgian, Dutch and Italian Agencies which were also supplemented by the South American dealers who themselves may have already converted into Agencies. It is not known when their contracts were signed.

My guess that the large list of French recordings of 10-inch size, which followed the third batch of Belgian records, was the first session arranged by Charles & Jacques Ullmann in Paris, needs to be qualified in respect of the fact that there had been a small clutch of recordings by Munilla, in Spanish, he being attributed as a Buenos Aires artist, and his discs were numbered X1200 to X1212 (with X1209 a "blank entry"). Then a smaller batch of French recordings covering X1213 to X1219, followed by another Buenos Aires artist singing in Spanish, who was de Navas, on X1220 to X1230. The large French list ran from X1231 to X1299 which again was followed by some more Buenos Aires artists in the form of the Police Band of that city, and the orchestra of the San Martin Theatre. It is from such examples of interweaving of the catalogue numbers between sets of artists separated by thousands of miles (unless the South American artists were in Paris) which lends weight to my suspicion that perhaps the catalogue numbers, with the identical matrix numbers, were allocated after the master waxes were received at the factory and simply put to those passed for commercial pressing. Was a recording ledger carried from Paris to Buenos Aires, then back to Paris, then to Buenos Aires and so on; or were cables sent from one location to another stating the last matrix number used and awaiting notification about which number could be used next?

The Buenos Aires Band and Orchestral recordings took the numbering to X1314 and then there follows a very large block of numbers about whose content practically nothing is known at all. These numbers ran from X1315 to X1493, one hundred and seventy nine discs. Among these, X1466 has been noted by me as being sung in the French language. X1494, the next number which is 'known', has another French language item sung by de Souza of Lisbon, Portugal. Does this large block of 'blanks' include some of the Russian recordings said to be among those to be ready for Christmas 1902?

The next group was German, X1495 to X1505, with X1506 an Austrian pianist. Then comes the celebrated "Blue Label" group from the Anglo-Italian Commerce Company (which included the Carusos) X1507 to X1599, and which of course, were not included in the June, 1903, black-labelled catalogue.

The Italian Grand Opera singers records were followed by a large Austrian group, which may reflect the setting up of the Viennese branch of the International Zonophone Company. The numbers ran from X1600 to X1675 which continued with a Swiss group from X1676 to X1685, and then straight on to a very large Italian block from X1686 to X1899, examples of which are known with blue labels and dark blue Disco Reale labels. This block may not be wholly of Italian artists however, because, with eight "blanks" in the listing up to Mieli's X1857 there is a complete absence of titles from numbers X1858 to X1896, the block ending with Magini-Codetti, on "Blues", at X1897 to X1899, and the recordings between these two artists might well be from some recording location other than Milan.

The next number, X1900, commences a Belgian block, to X1951 and then we are off on to the largest block of French recordings, running from X1952 to X2188, and these include blue and orange labelled Disque Zon-o-phones along with the blacks, a total of 237 recordings, with only about twenty blank entries to be filled. These were the last records to be included in the June, 1903, catalogue.

But Ch. and J. Ullmann of London had made their arrangements for British recordings, as had the Compagnie du Zonophone Belge, and the Anglo-Italian Commerce Company as well as to augment their repertoires still further, for these were pressed by the International Zonophone Company, but issued after the take over by the Gramophone and Typewriter Ltd, which allowed the company to carry on its business for a short period, before re-organisation took place. These G & T controlled, but independent Zon-o-phone discs were:- X1289/90 unknown, X2191 to X2213 Belgian, X2214 to X2219 Spanish, X2220 to X2253 Belgian, X2254 unknown, X2255 to X2298 British, X2300 to X2303 German, X2306 to X2306 unknown, X2307/8 Austrian, X2309 to X2372 British, then a large block of "unknowns" from X2373 to X2504, and, finally X2505 to X2568 Italian. We lack details of the Romanian, Turkish Egyptian recordings. These would have been made for the Agencies in those countries which came into existence on the basis that they would be responsible for recording items for their own catalogues.

Further circumstantial evidence that the matrix numbers were applied to the Zonophone discs after clearance for commercial use comes with the seven-inch discs. Among the 10-inch discs just mentioned, was a small batch of Swiss artists' recordings, in fact, there were only two artists, the Gebrüder Staubli, and their ten-inch records were sandwiched, numerically between a Viennese block and an Italian block. One would expect given artists to record both sizes of discs at the same sessions, especially when similar titles were performed for both sizes, and if this happened with the Swiss artists, as I suggest it did, then one would expect the Austrian artist on 10-ins discs, who came before the Swiss, and the Italian artists, on 10-inch discs, who followed the Swiss, to have also recorded on seven-inch discs at the sessions when they made their ten-inch size, and that this order of things would be represented by the matrix progression for both sizes if numbers were allocated at the time of recording. But this is not reflected in the June, 1903, catalogue if this was so, for on 7-inch the Swiss artists on 10558 to 10587, are preceded by the British Military Band on 10555 to 7, who were preceded by some German records on 10521 to 10553. Following the Swiss seven-inch records (as with the 10-inch) was an extremely large batch of Italian recordings with numbers 10588 to 10807.

THE LATER-ISSUED 7-inch ZON-O-PHONE RECORDS

With the introduction of the American-recorded Zon-o-phone Records into the International catalogue, at a date still to be exactly determined before April, 1902, the European catalogue numbers were given a big advance in their numerical sequence, the lowest known being 10,055 on a Hungarian recording.

From 10,073 to the last positive known number, 12945, the blocks of issues were as under:-

13000 to 13064 Probably Romanian because these numbers appeared on Romanian G & T discs pressed into the shellac.

* signifies that these discs were NOT listed in the 1903 catalogue.

Among the above blocks of numbers there are "blank entries" and it is well to remember that, owing to the interweaving of records from different venues the "blanks" may be recordings from locations different from the block in which they occur. Miss Mortimer's record 12,717 is a good example.

It is hardly likely that any British recordings arranged by Ch. and J. Ullmann would have been ready for the June, 1903, catalogue, as there was insufficient time for the 225 different "British batch" recordings to be ready. Similarly, none of the items arranged by the Romanian Agency could have been ready for inclusion, even though a Romanian repertoire was mentioned in a May advertisement. As the Egyptian, Turkish and Russian languages were not generally understood in western Europe, one assumes that these recordings were deliberately omitted from the International Catalogue - except for one Serbian record listed in the cyrillic script.

THE LAST FEW WEEKS OF INDEPENDENCE

The "Her Master's Voice" illustration accompanied the International Zonophone Company's advertisement in the 1st April, 1903, edition of the "British Trade Journal", which was similar to that of 1st. December, 1902, excepting that the new Muhlenstrasse address was given. Despite the Agency contracts already in existence, the Company was still stating, "Agents Wanted Everywhere - Write for Terms"

The first use of the "Her Master's Voice" picture in Phonographische Zeitschrift came in the 20th. May issue, when it headed a double page spread advertisement which, itself, was a "first", previous advertisements having been only of half-page size.

The Company was now demonstrating how successful and important it had become, supported, as it then was, by a number of independent businesses acting as its Agents in various countries and this was reflected in the matter advertised, which in translation was:-

"International Zonophone Co. - The popularity with which our instrument, the Zonophone, has met in Europe, and the expansion which our business has experienced over the last few years have progressed with giant strides and the success is so considerable that we feel it will undoubtedly also be of interest to more remote circles if we publish a few relevant data.

The Zonophone repertoire of two years ago did not include a single disc recorded in Europe, while we have now available a repertoire of over 5,000 of the best instrumental and vocal pieces, recitals, etc. and this repertoire is divided into German, French, Italian, Russian, Dutch, Danish, Swedish, Norwegian, Hungarian, Greek, Hebrew, Spanish and Portuguese recordings.

Our recording engineers - four of them - have been busy in most European capitals during the intervening period and the sort of fees we have to pay the artistes (sums such as 20,000 marks having, in some individual cases, been paid for five recordings) have, perhaps, exceeded the artistes' annual fees of a major theatre. Our repertoire includes names of first rate artistes such as Sarah Bernhardt, Paris; Tomaso Savini, Milan; Henrico Caruso (sic); Emma Calve, Paris; Paul Plançon, Paris; Coquelin, aine; Delmas, Orelia, Amsterdam; Leo Czlesack, Vienna; Selma Kurz, Vienna; Helene Rabitow, Vienna; Heine, Vienna; Ade Wialczewa, St Petersburg; etc.

We do not propose to praise our wares unduly, nor do we boast that our discs are the best, - we merely prove the quality of our goods by the turnover which we obtain. Beginning with less than significant orders two years ago, our current productions and sales suggest an anticipated turnover of more than 2,000,000 discs per annum. Such success cannot be achieved if the goods in question are not competitive, that is to say, if they are not equal to present-day technical standards. Among our friends there are top artistes who, without being asked to do so, are paying us the greatest compliments on our instruments. Among the testimonials we have received, we would mention the following:-

"I must confess that your Zonophones are really admirable and they have prevailed upon me to accept your invitation to sing a number of pieces for you.

Henrique Caruso! Milan 19th April, 1903.

"I must say that I consider your Zonophone the most perfect human voice reproduction instrument that I have ever heard.

Marcella Sembrich."

(Edouard de Reszke's testimonial was also included.)

Our discs reproduce the art and emotions of the greatest living artistes and, for a modest sum, even those living in the remotest corners of the world can listen in their own homes to the most outstanding artistes, whom they would otherwise, perhaps, never have an opportunity of hearing. Lieder, operas, humorous recitals, popular songs, romantic compositions, solo recitals, martial music, orchestral pieces and sacred music performed in churches throughout the world are contained in our repertoire.

In designing our instruments, as in the case of our discs, we constantly endeavour to remain up-to-date. Our instrument catalogue features 16 different models ranging from the cheapest to the most luxurious types.

The Zonophone is the very essence of progress in the technique of modern sound reproduction instruments. We shall be only too glad to supply more detailed information prospective purchasers.

Agents are required everywhere. Dealers interested in our articles are requested to send us their address to enable us to keep them continually informed of the latest developments.

Everybody interested in the best and artistically recorded Zonophone discs should not fail to ask for our Zonophone and disc catalogues. We always offer the latest products. Twenty and more new recordings are made every day. Any dealers and artistes visiting Berlin are invited to inspect our factories and store rooms. International Zonophone Company. Head Office - O 17, Muhlenstrasse 71/77, Berlin".

A list of Agents was given, from which discs and instruments could be obtained, and this was similar to the list given in the June 1903 disc catalogue with the exception that in this May advertisement the Russian Agent was included, still at the September, 1901, address. The New York branch of the International Zonophone Company was then at 24. East 22nd. Street. By the time the catalogue was published the address had changed to 23. East 20th. Street.

From this advertisement one may be sure that the European-recorded Zonophone Records were on sale in the North American continent, through the New York Branch, and it is also manifest that the International Zonophone Company of Berlin continued to deal directly with dealers although probably not in those areas where Agencies had become established. On 28th. May, the A I C C advertised in "La Tribuna" offering records of Tamagno, de Lucia, Caruso and others; "write for catalogue".

There were just seventeen days to go before the Gramophone and Typewriter, Limited, were to acquire a major shareholding in the WHOLE of the Zonophone interests in the U S A and Germany. Interestingly, Frederick M. Prescott, the Managing Director in Berlin, did not hold a majority of the shares, and his shares were not acquired at that time. (They were finally bought from him in 1904.) Whether he refused to sell or whether the G & T Ltd considered it unwise to put ready money into his coffers at that stage. I also wonder if Prescott knew that a take over was imminent or whether it came as a complete surprise. One wonders if pressure was being put on him to make him surrender his patent for double-sided records to the G & T Ltd.

The last advertisement to come from the independent Zonophone company was published in "Phonographische Zeitschrift" on 3rd. June, 1903. Again it was a double-page spread, with the "Her Master's Voice" illustration below the company name which headed the first page. The tenor of the advertisement was similar to that printed a fortnight earlier, but the wording gave variations in emphasis on some points. In translation it began:- "The Zonophone has spread throughout Europe in such a phenomenal way in the last two years that the public will, undoubtedly, be interested in some relevant, historical facts. Two years ago there was not a single European disc. Now the Zonophone repertoire consists of 5,000 numbers comprising the best instrumental music and songs and recitations in German, French, Italian, English, Russian, Spanish, Portuguese, Dutch, Flemish, Danish, Norwegian, Swedish, Hungarian, Serb, Romanian and Greek."

This language list differed from May's advertisement in that English was included and Hebrew was omitted. The four recording engineers were again mentioned, as were the high costs of obtaining the services of some artistes.

The list of famous artistes had undergone minor changes, Tomasi Savini was now as Tommaso Salvini, Henrico Caruss was now Enrico Caruso, Paul Plançon was now Pol Plançon, Coquelin aîné was now of Paris and not Amsterdam, and the same applied to M. Delmas. Orelia was given the initials "J. M.", Leo Czlesack had become Leo Slezac and Ade Wialczewa had become A. D. Wialzewa. The June, 1903, catalogue had her name differently again!

"We provide your home, at all times and at a moderate price, with the best music performed by the best artists, whose playing or singing you might never otherwise be able to hear. Also we give you popular ditties, folk songs and romances, and comic turns by the best artists in the European countries listed above, together with instrumental music of every type, including national anthems played by military bands, solo and orchestral pieces of every kind. In a word, our catalogue is the richest of the lot."

"It is hardly necessary to add that our discs are of good quality for it is a fact that although our business was founded only two years ago we have a yearly turn-over of over two million discs, which shows that our records have met with general approval. Such quantities could never be sold if the quality was not of a high standard. If you want the latest and best discs, ask for Zonophones. We do not stand still. We enrich our catalogue by at least twenty items per day throughout the year and, as with discs, so with our Zonophone instruments. Our catalogue contains 16 different models of Zonophones, so that every taste and every purse can be suited. Zonophone means progress and improvement in every direction and so we respectfully invite your interest in our Zonophones. We need Agents everywhere. Send us your exact address and we will be pleased to send you, from time to time, our latest catalogues of instruments and discs. Illustrated catalogues and complete lists of discs are sent free upon request. If you come to Berlin please pay us a visit; the factories where the instruments and discs are made will interest you."

A list of Agents was similar to May's, with the New York Branch still at variance with the June, 1903, catalogue. Had it moved, or was the address a printer's error in the catalogue?

H & J Blumenthal Freres' address was added, as at 52/56 Topalian Han, Stambul, Constantinople. Blumenthal Freres & Cie's address was additional too, as at Rue Masour Pacha, Kairo, Egypt.

Roland Gelatt, in his book "The Fabulous Phonograph" claims that Prescott was sending repeated letters to the New York headquarters pleading for more capital. I do not know what evidence he had. At the time of this last advertisement, three days before the take over, the International Zonophone Company had the support of at least 14 Agencies contracted to meet some of the cost of recording, and the expansive advertising of the last two months hardly reflects the standing of a company allegedly crying out for more capital.

Disc Record Manufacturers ATTENTION

If you are not satisfied with your product.

If some part of the manufacture needs perfection.

Let me help you.

I was the pioneer to introduce the present disc record into Europe in 1901. Successful factories were erected in England, France, Spain, Germany, Austria, and Brazil under my management. I know the record business from A to Z, and can correct any process that you are weak in.

The present system of permanent masters was perfected in my laboratories in 1904 and has never been improved upon.

The double sided record was my patent and brought out in 1903.

If you want the best to be had in recording machines; if you want the latest development in pressing records from shells; if you want increased record production in power-driven presses—I can help you.

(BRITISH) BERLINER, G & T and ZONOPHONE

7-inch records

BRIAN RUST

introduction

Exactly ten years after his first public demonstration of his invention at the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia, Emile Berliner was ready, with three fairly prosperous years in the American markets behind him, to launch the Gramophone across the Atlantic. In July, 1898, his young assistant Fred Gaisberg set up the first of a series of studios in Europe, in the basement of 31, Maiden Lane, London, behind a typically Victorian thoroughfare of solid masonry housing offices, shops and hotels. Within two years, business had progressed to the point where the whole building was no longer suitable for coping with the demands of space for storing, and for housing the recording studio itself, and the headquarters of the Gramophone & Typewriter Co. (and Sister Companies) Ltd., as it became known from December, 1900, were moved to a new site at 21, City Road, London, E. C.

All the Berliner records and seven-inch G & T issues made in Great Britain were recorded in one of these locations, with the exceptions of those made in 1899 in Glasgow, Belfast, Dublin and Cardiff. The sides made during August, September and October, 1898 have no matrix numbers, and are listed in this book according to their catalogue numbers. From November 1, 1898, matrix numbers starting at 1 became generally used, even before the American headquarters had decided on a similar procedure, and over 4,000 of these were accounted for prior to the introduction of the Eldridge R. Johnson wax recording system that replaced Berliner's zinc etching.

From the beginning, Emile Berliner had allocated blocks of catalogue numbers to records of similar types, such as military bands (notably Sousa's), vocals, instrumental solos, and so on. He had also dated most of his products, an example of Teutonic thoroughness and precision for which all gramophone historians must be profoundly thankful. Fred Gaisberg, however, while maintaining the practice of dating the records for some three years, allocated catalogue numbers according to what nationality had produced the performance, or the song, combined with the sex of the artist. Male singers or performers were carefully segregated into blocks beginning at 2000, females beginning at 3000, and more than one voice of either or both sexes began at 4000. Pianists and cornetists shared the 5000 block, dividing at 5500, the cornetists taking the first half; clarinetists began at 6000, banjoists at 6250, and buglers at 6700; trombonists were allocated the 7000 block, which was subdivided at 7450 for ocarina solos (!), 7550 for bassoonists, 7700 for bagpipes, 7850 for cello solos, 7900 for violin solos, but the entire 8000 block seems to have been allotted to brass quartets. The 9000s featured piccolos, solo and en masse; 9100 to 9149 was given to concertina players, and 9150 to apparently 9249 to flautists. The rest of the 9000 block was occupied by tubular bells, tone-pictures of simple scenes, sundry whistling solos and other "novelties." This was if the songs were sung in English, or the instrumentalists or whatever were Britons, at least as a rule. If of Hebrew origin, the four-digit catalogue number was expanded to a five-digit one by adding 1 in front; if Russian, 2; French, 3; German, 4; Italian, 5; Spanish, 6; Hungarian, 7; Scandinavian, 8; Dutch, 9. As each block was exhausted, it was reused, with a 2-prefixing it, then 3- and so on. By this time, the seven-inch disc was as obsolete as the 78 rpm record itself is today, and our survey in this book ends with the last of these "mini-records" as they have been rather patronizingly termed.

All the entries in this book are the result of close examination of either the original records themselves, or the fragments of recording ledgers that by some mercy have survived three quarters of a century or so in the vaults of EMI's factory in Hayes, Middlesex. That I was able to carry out this research is due to the great kindness and sympathetic understanding of Sir Joseph Lockwood, late Chairman of EMI Ltd.; to Mr. David Abdey, Gramophone Librarian, and Mr. E. E. Lawrence, Head of the Cataloguing Department, without whose patience and co-operation this book would not and could not exist. That there are gaps in the sequence of numbers, both matrix and catalogue, is inevitable, it seems, but inexplicable now, so long afterwards. A curious method of numbering each "take" of a performance with a new number accounts for many of these gaps, no doubt, at least in the matrix listing; gaps in the block of catalogue numbers may indicate that a record, having been made and given a catalogue number, was found to be faulty and never installed in the literature of the company, although this seems unlikely as re-making was a common enough practice in those days.

There were no labels on any Berliner records, the title, artist, numbers, date and sometimes other titbits of information (e.g., the composer, accompanist or type of accompaniment) were scratched in the smooth central area by whoever in the studio at the time was nearest to the stylus. In 1901, the practice of stamping in the wax was adopted, and at the end of that year, the black paper label with gold print superseded this. Dating was abandoned forever in countries outside the USA, where Victor continued to inscribe the central area under the label with the same kind of information, including the date, right up to the spring of 1931, and copies of Victor pressings issued on HMV in countries such as India and Australia, where manufacture did not involve complete removal of the centre area almost the size of the label, can be seen to give this information showing through the label.

This listing also includes seven-inch Zonophone records, issued from 1903 to 1906 after the International Zonophone Company was bought by the Gramophone and Typewriter Company. Generally speaking, their repertoire is of less interest to a collector of any kind of historic sound-document as so much is of commonplace band music, a heavy preponderance of trivial popular ballads beloved of drawing-room and concert-hall habitués of the Edwardian era, and "novelties" that had already undergone adequate exploitation on Berliner records some years earlier; yet there are to be found on Zonophone a few gold nuggets, as it were, of interest to the enthusiast for ragtime banjo playing, the sociologist who studies music-hall lyrics for clues to working-class conditions at the time, and even the occasional vocal celebrity of the status of John McCormack was issued under the dull green, plain Zonophone label that, being single-sided, had yet to acquire a striking trade-mark such as the Twin design of later years.

The Berliner repertoire was quite adventurous, under the dedicated Fred Gaisberg's direction. From the beginning, he secured talent of the stature of Edna May, star of THE BELLE OF NEW YORK; Ellen Beach Yaw, American operatic soprano, not a prolific recording artist by any means; Marie Tempest, operatic and musical stage luminary who was also a great actress; and comedians such as Gus Elen, James Fawn, Herbert Darnley, R. G. Knowles, Albert Chevalier and Connie Ediss.

Alas! Few purchasers of Berliner records at the time of issue could have had any idea that these newfangled means of home entertainment would someday become regarded as historical documents, many of them the audible equivalent of an early Caxton printing, or a first folio of Shakespeare. The heavy soundboxes on what has become known as the Trade Mark model, or its prototype, the solid brass horn - not forgetting the crude steel needles that were doubtless rarely changed - all served to make short work of the shallow grooves on these pioneer records. Yet, like all true pioneers, they were tough, and some were treated with the respect that should be accorded all blazers of new trails, these fortunate survivors coming down to us in reasonable, not to say excellent condition to impress, fascinate and frequently entertain us. This book is designed to show exactly what the fin-de-siècle artists played and sang, when and where they did so, and is offered as a tribute to the man whose genius made it possible: Emile Berliner.

After the Gramophone & Typewriter Limited was formed, seven-inch records were given its black labels. But, some records which had begun as Berliners were "brought-forward" to become "G & T's". So, you may find items which began as Berliners with the G & T label on them.

In the following listing, those records with catalogue numbers higher than 40,000 are green-labelled Zonophones. Some of these had begun life as G & T's. This will account for some in our list having two catalogue numbers, one low, one high.

After the Gramophone & Typewriter Limited had bought up the International Zonophone in 1903, some of that Company's records were kept in the G & T - Zonophone catalogue. These were given green labels, but the catalogue numbers will all be less than 40,000. These are N O T listed here because, of course, they were recorded originally by another company.

In compiling my own, separate, Zonophone listing, I must have seen some different ledgers at EMI Ltd. from Brian Rust. That which I saw showed, in some cases, that the alternative "takes" were also issued. At this time we can only accept this at its face value for it will be hard to prove otherwise now.

The recording sessions of early Sept. 1902 (matrices 4934 - 4949) were made by a French Band at the Earl's Court Exhibition. On Zonophone it was labelled "Earl's Court Exhibition Band". Matrix 4935 was on Zono 40001; 4939 was on 40002; 4946 was on 40003.

Other changes for Zonophone use were:-

matrix 4964 issued on 40035 as Zonophone Military Band.

" 5370, one ledger says this issued on Zono 46253 as by Olly Oakley.

We feel from ledgers entries that L. H. Saulsbury may be a pseudonym for Burt Shepard. Can someone confirm or deny? There are various versions of spelling the Hebrew / Yiddish titles & artistes. Record labels may differ from what we show. Records shown as by Burt Shepard for G & T, became as by George Atkinson on Zonophone for matrices 5847, 5855, 5870, 5845, 5966. There was no room to add to Mr. Rust's excellent typing. Mabel Medrow became Gladys Wynne on Zonophone for matrices 6214 and 6216.

Matrix 2408 by Kate Cove issued also on Zonophone 43032. Matrix 6315 by John Harrison on Zono. as by Harold Johnson. Matrix 6318 issued on Zono. as by Zonophone Military Band. Matrix 6357 " " " " Charles Holland. Matrix 6693, and an extra one, 6694½ (I fear no foe) by Griffiths Percy, issued on Zono. as by Charles Crisp, 6694½ was on Zonophone 42180.

Matrix 7301 also issued on Zonophone, as by Charles Holland.

E. Bayly

The first section of this book is devoted to the earliest Berliners, those made prior to November 1, 1898, and thus not allocated matrix numbers. Several were subsequently remade, given matrix numbers and a letter suffix to the catalogue number (see Introduction). It will be noticed that the allocation of the original catalogue numbers was not done in order of recording. Most pressings bear the date of the session, but there are those that do not. In such cases, no attempt has been made to estimate the date. Many of the earliest recordings have the catalogue numbers prefixed E- or Gy (Germany), but these symbols are not consistent, and have not been shown in the listing that follows.

The following are the recordings made as seven-inch pressings from masters allocated matrix numbers, dating from November 1, 1898. As will be seen, several of them are also shown in the preceding section, as they were issued before those that had only catalogue numbers had been exhausted. All were recorded in London, unless otherwise marked.

It is thought that Felix Mills may be Fred Gaisberg.

On 17 May, 1899, Fred Gaisberg and Sinkler Darby arrived in Leipzig as their first stop on a whirlwind tour of European cities where they recorded a large number of sides by way of introducing Emile Berliner's Gramophone to the Continent. The itinerary, with approximate blocks of matrix numbers recorded in each location, runs like this :-

Leipzig	19 May -	1 June 99	2117-2300 ?
Budapest	3 June -	14 June 99	? 2301-2480 ?
Vienna-	15 June -	2 July 99	? 2481-2700 ?
Milan	3 July -	13 July 99	? 2701-2940 ?
Paris	14 July -	6 Aug. 99	? 2941-3360 ?
Madrid	7 Aug. -	19 Aug. 99	? 3361-3500 ?

On 3 September, 1899, the pair were sent by William Barry Owen, Managing Director of the Gramophone Company Ltd., on a similar tour of the British Isles, starting in Glasgow, where we pick up the threads of the story. None of the results is dated - indeed, few of the European expedition's products are - and dating does not re-appear until 15 November. The dates of arrival and departure from the locations of the British Isles tour are known, however, from Fred Gaisberg's diaries, and I am quoting these here, along with any he identifies positively in detail.

No further examples of recordings in this series have so far been found, and it is likely that the above represent the last zinc-etched recordings made in Europe. The following series was made by the Johnson process of recording on wax, and the first hundred or so have their matrix numbers prefixed J.

566	Elijah : Lord God Of Abraham	Montague Borwell	2775	4 May 00	The next traceable matrix number in this series is 799, recorded in Milan on 14 July 1900. Between this date and the end of August lie some 388 sides recorded there and in Paris, not in strict numerical-chronological order. The series resumes in London, with some further inconsistencies of relationship between the matrix numbers and the dates. The latter are given as shown on the actual discs; we can now only hazard a guess as to their accuracy.

The dates shown for the remaining entries in this book are taken from a handwritten recording ledger in the EMI files that has somehow survived the vicissitudes of over seventy years. Issue numbers are sometimes shown; where they are not, it has sometimes been possible to discover them in contemporary catalogues. It is fairly safe to assume that if the catalogue number column henceforth is blank, the record in question was never issued. Titles and artists are as the ledger shows them, as are the dates; the latter can be regarded with a certain amount of suspicion where an inordinate number of sides by one artist appear to have been made on a date but with no further recording by anyone else for some days thereafter, but in the main they seem accurate enough.

A RETRACTION & AMENDMENT FROM FRANK ANDREWS

On page 683 of the June, 1976, issue of the Talking Machine Review, at the commencement of my series of articles, and placed below the reproduction of the upper half of a "Fonotipia" label, is the caption boldly stating that the label shown was the second label to be used by the Societa di Fonotipia.

THIS WAS NOT SO, and I unreservedly withdraw the statement. As far as I am now aware, the label shown, or one very similar, was the first type of label to be used by the Italian company before it was acquired by the British company.

On page 693, in the 5th paragraph, will be found the reason why I understood there to have been an earlier design of the label and that was conditioned by some information I had acquired about the key-note device as used on the records of G & T Ltd. I understood the key-note device to mean the registered trade mark of the treble clef on the music stave with the word "Gramophone" thereon, for, in my ignorance, I did not know that G & T Ltd had actually made records with a key-tone recorded between the outside of the label area and the end of the recorded piece, on some discs. Gramophone Monarch Record 053048 has this device, and it is a song by Frascani composed especially for the Gramophone & Typewriter, Ltd. by Umberto Giordano and recorded under his direction.

The significance of this is, that as early as 15th. January, 1905, Giordano had an Agreement with the Fonotipia enterprise, under which he was to receive a percentage of the surplus net profits of the company, and both he and Michaelis, having been associated with the Gramophone and Typewriter, Ltd. knew all about the key-note device and it is now known to be a fact that the first Italian-recorded records for which the Societa Italiana di Fonotipia were responsible, whether Fonotipia discs or the "Societa's" "Odeon Records", also carried the "key note" device recorded outside the label area, and the dispute between the Gramophone Company (Italy), Ltd. and the Italian Fonotipia company was over the use of this recorded "key-note" and NOT over the design of the "Societa's" labels.

Who is the Leader of the band ?

Alasdair Fenton

Who indeed ? Does the name of Henri Jacques, or Max Murray mean anything to you or is it just a name on the record label ? These names like many others are in fact the same man. His real name was Harry Leader, and he was born in London.

Harry inherited his love of music from his father, and sang in the school choir. While still at school he began learning the violin, and at the age of 14 took up the saxophone, and began playing with local outfits. As this was mostly night club work, he thought that it might impair his health, so he switched to "Palais" work, playing in such places as Hull, Leeds, Bournemouth and Brighton.

In 1930 he went on tour to Italy as a member of Sid Phillips Melodians, and in fact took over the leadership when Sid returned to England to join the Ambrose Orchestra.

One night while playing in night club in Rome, Harry was approached by a recording manager and offered a contract. As a result of this, when he returned to England, he took his band into the recording studio and recorded some titles for Panachord. From there he moved to Broadcast records, and in 1934 began recording for the small Eclipse records (8 - inch) which were mainly sold by Woolworth's. In the beginning however, they were issued as by Joe Taub and his Melodians, but soon the name of Harry Leader could be seen plainly and clearly on the label.

In 1935 Harry joined E.M.I. as a house band conductor, and in this role, using some 40 noms de plume, recorded some 1,200 titles. During this period he used such names as the Max Murray Orchestra, Henri Jacques Strict Tempo Orchestra, International Novelty Orchestra, Wally Bishop & his Band, the New Mayfair Dance Orchestra and the Coral Islanders.

In 1938 Harry took his band into the Hammersmith Palais, and on the outbreak of World War II began giving concerts to the troops. In 1942 he moved from the Palais to the Astoria Ballroom in Charing Cross Road (London). The initial contract was a three months trial. He stayed there over fourteen years !

In 1956 Harry went on a series of one-night stands throughout the country, and played a summer season at Bridlington.

In 1959 he moved into the Regent Ballroom in Brighton, where he remained until 1963.

As well as being a musician and bandleader, Harry was also a prolific song writer, as he recalls....."Songwriting has also been a tremendous interest to me. I must have written over 250 numbers by now, many of them recorded by other artists." Among the best-known are "Tonight's the Night", "Cider Night", "South Paw Special", "Love me love me", "When I love you", "Dance, dance, dance", "Back to the old Kentucky Days", "Dance of the Steppes", and of course the famous "Dragonfly". This number was written in collaboration with Rona Grey, and became a great pop hit when recorded for Decca by The Tornados in 1963.

Harry was also kept very busy in the recording studios, though, sad to say, more for the American market than ours. Leading a Dixieland band in the style of Bob Crosby's Bobcats, he recorded a number of titles which were put on sale and marketed by the giant Macey's Store of New York. In 1955 the Canadian Company Solitaire began issuing a series of ten-inch LP records, and they signed up two British bands, one being Teddy Foster, the other Harry Leader. One of the titles he recorded was "Strange Lady in Town" with a vocal refrain by Al Jordan, today better known as Matt Monroe. Sad to say the discs were unsuccessful and the label has long since disappeared.

In 1960 Harry formed nine piece orchestra with vocalist Johnny Time to make four titles for the American market of which two titles "Dance Dance" and "On Washington Square" were issued in Britain on the defunct Top Rank label.

In October, 1965, Harry was back in the recording studios doing his own version of "Dragonfly". Harry's last visit to the recording studios took place in 1972, when an LP was released on the Spiral label called "Let's Dance" - Volume 4, featuring Harry Leader and the Nu Set. Whether there was any further volume issued I do not know.

At the time of writing Harry Leader is believed to be living in retirement in Brighton.

When Whisky was almost a year old we left Myatts Park and bought a three hundred and seventy-five years old farm house. Whisky had about ten acres of land, which were his property and he guarded it right well! Suddenly, one day he became very ill and the vet said it was the new 'killer', named 'hard pad'. This was the first time we had heard of it. All of a sudden, dogs around began to die or were 'put down' because of it. Then I learned that one week when I had left the car at home it had been used to take a sick dog to the vet. Whisky loved the car and often got a run to Southend on Sea. On that occasion he got more than a joy ride, he got what could have been his death sentence.

Our vet, however, said as Whisky had a very strong heart and a great constitution, if we were willing to nurse him for four or five weeks he might be saved, but to build up no false hopes. So, I 'developed' the most terrible throat infection. Week after week I would phone my agent and in a hoarse voice, whisper, "It's no good, I can't sing". Night and day we nursed that dog, through one phase after another. When his feet got so hard that we could hear him going outside to be clean, it was as if he were wearing clogs. Maisie even tried oiling them. Then the fits, fifteen in one day. He never gave up. He would fetch a ball, stagger up to me, drop the ball and have a fit. Then when he 'came to' he would pick up that ball and growl at me because I would not throw it.

It was a disease that had several phases, the next being bronchitis and pneumonia. This was combatted by using vapour lamps and as we slept with him in the living room it was unpleasant. On the crisis night his teeth were drawn back from his lips and his panting was almost a roar. Suddenly it stopped and I said to Maisie, "He's gone!" Not so; he dragged himself to Maisie's bed, turned on to one side and gave her a paw, to which she held the entire night. By the morning, that week's crisis had passed and when the vet came he said he had won that round.

All this time my throat was 'no better'. The strange thing about the dog was that he hated me to see him ill and I really had to pretend I thought him well. If I said "Poor old chap", he would have tried to attack me but so long as I spoke naturally, without showing my true feelings, he was O.K. with me. It was to Maisie he turned though before this illness he had never been her dog. He was a man's dog. The vet assured us that he was fighting for his life and his heart was still strong as ever. There were other disorders such as slight blindness but finally came a shocking abscess on his tail and when Maisie was dressing them he would whimper. By now, we knew we were winning, or Maisie was.

The great day came when the vet Mr. Newsome said he could be taken for a short walk (he had been tottering around the garden) daily for a week, then he would be back to normal. The vet was thrilled because until that time Whisky was the only dog he had managed to pull through. He was the sort of vet whom it hurt to have to destroy a 'patient'. So, for the first time I opened the gate and went out into the field with Whisky, who although thin, did not seem to be behaving like a sick dog. Suddenly a hare rose and bounded off and to my horror Whisky went off after him like a streak. "Five weeks of worry and sadness, then hope, all gone for a burton", I thought as he chased that hare to the boundary of the field; then back he came panting but with the old look in his eyes which said, "I chased that so-and-so off our place, didn't I?" The vet had said he was to be taken along gradually, but Whisky had other ideas.

When I said to Maisie, "That dog cost over twelve hundred pounds in lost Theatre engagements", (and it was during the last few days of his illness that I tried to record 'Ay Ay Ay', and 'Vieni Vieni', which as I have already stated I had to have cancelled as I could not sing and the results were bad!) she just replied, "We've still got Whisky, haven't we?" He retired with us, when we came to the Island of Arran and lived until he was thirteen.

He was not the only dog we brought home from Nottingham because, on my next visit, when Maisie was out shopping, she came back to the hotel and said, "Oh, Monte, I've just seen a poor Bull Terrier in a shop window and she looks so miserable and frightened." "Sorry", I said, "We've got Whisky and the canaries," (housed in a large aviary were about seventy canaries, which had been purchased, from time to time, because we were sorry for them as they were in cages). "No more dogs." Anyway, she suggested, later, that we might go for a walk and by devious ways landed me at the pet shop window. Of course, we bought the seven months' old Bull Terrier bitch, which had most certainly been cowed and was in such poor condition at first that she could not cross our ploughed field. She became Maisie's shadow and she returned to Arran with us.

We were not the only daft dog lovers on the stage. I remember Anne Shelton did something of this sort over a pet she owned. She was talking to someone over lunch and I heard parts of the story. We were to talk about the 'old days' on S. T. V., there was a 'chairman', poor chap he didn't have a chance, we talked his head off.

On more than one occasion, we went across the sea to Eire. In a darkened ship, sailing at night, we experienced a queer feeling of 'things', lurking underneath, waiting to 'pounce' as it were. We had a cabin and though I managed a little sleep each journey, I am sure Maisie lay expecting a torpedo, or God knows what, to strike at any minute. I know that Eire was supposed to be neutral but how was a submarine commander or German airman to know that?

When we arrived in Dublin, it was, of course, well worth the journey. There was no rationing of food or clothes, such as we experienced at home. So we 'had a ball'. I bought a suit for Maisie's father, who was left in charge of our farm in Essex, and wore it all week and made sure it was well crumpled by the week-end so that the Customs Officers never noticed it. We needed a stair carpet for our country home and when I saw exactly what I wanted and talked to the shop owner, he knew what to do. "Buy the carpet strip", said he, "put it down the middle of your stage setting and walk on it nightly. Then show it to the Customs, as part of your stage decorations." Exactly what I did and I got away with it. It was not the cash we needed at home, but the coupons. It was also the fact that I enjoyed the risk of being caught which was the main urge to do this sort of thing.

The audience in Dublin was wonderful, quite out of this world. Between songs, just as I was about to start the next, a mighty voice would yell, "That's the stuff, Monte bhoy, give us another one." - As if I would not. On the Friday and Saturday nights, they reminded me of Liverpool and Glasgow Empire audiences, due doubtless to the number of Irish who attended these British Isles Theatres. Once, before I went solo, I played Dublin with Joe Loss and saw one of the funniest happenings I have ever seen in connection with microphones. The mikes on the stage came up through the floor and on one occasion when the show opened, three men walked on to the stage and as one, addressed the audience, "We call on yez to release the political prisoners." I do not know what they hoped to gain by this but underneath the stage the man below started to lower the mike. Three hands shot out but the mike kept sinking and as they went lower and lower, the men kept repeating, "We call on yez to release the political prisoners", until at the end they were flat on their faces, three heads crammed together and repeating, "We call on yez to release the political prisoners". After that, we did not really know what to expect but nothing more happened. The show went on and the week was a great success.

'Pros' are seldom long enough together to form really close friendships. One week you might be with a single or double act whom you got to like very much but as 'ships that pass in the night', you would never see them again. That often happened to Maisie and myself. On the other hand we would meet people of whom we were not over fond but unlike ships that pass in the night we would find them with us time and time again. We always had a soft spot for those who were called 'little acts', i.e. they were not in the top line, so were inclined to be overlooked. I wonder if the Star ever stopped to think where he or she would be without the backing of the 'little acts'. If there were three top liners heading the bill, of what use would they be if they had no backing.

So most of our friends were not Stars, just those whom we called 'people' and whether they were stars or not, if we liked them they were our friends. The 'little' acts were the backbone of the Theatre World.

We always liked Sandy Powell on a tour, he was a kindly person and never took himself seriously. Jimmie James, the greatest 'drunk' in the business was one we met now and then for one week. We would have liked to be with him over a period, but this never happened. I do not think we ever spent two consecutive weeks together. The first time I saw his 'Ginger Dunn' act, his drunk was so unbelievable that I really thought he must be a 'boozer'. Yet Jimmie was not a drinker at all. Through the number of broadcasts he did, such as 'The Singing Lighthouse Keeper, I was quite a fan.

I admired Georgie Wood as a real 'Pro'. He belonged to the pre-mike world, so came up the hard way and was a stalwart of the Theatre. He and Dolly Harmer were always a draw and Dolly truly was one of the sweetest ladies one could meet. Max and Harry Nesbitt were a likeable double act and their vitality was terrific. To watch them from the side of the stage left me breathless. I remember they composed their own songs and though I cannot recall any titles, I know they wrote some hits. I played Dewsbury once only and before me there was an act which finished with an explosion in a shot of iron drum. The fumes from this were awful, permeating the stage and caught my chest every night. On Saturday morning I knew I would not be able to do the evening show and luckily Max and Harry were at a Theatre not too far away, so, between their own appearances, motored over to Dewsbury and did my spot. Nice of them.

Occasionally, I had Arthur Prince who was a well known ventriloquist, as a Naval Officer. He was popular. He was popular in Glasgow Empire, which Theatre had its own views about acts! In one of the smaller theatres, however, I had a ventriloquist with me occasionally whose name I forget but whose 'dummy', (a rascal) was called Johnnie Green. This man used to boast, "I am the only vent, the movement of whose lips can be seen from the furthest back seat in the Gallery." While the Arthur Prince and Jim act was a classy Naval one, Johnnie Green was not classy. I remember one piece about Johnnie. His boss (as a teacher) had told him to go and stand behind the blackboard for being impertinent, forgetting that he had already sent his female dummy there. Suddenly a girlish squeak from behind the blackboard and the Teacher said "Johnnie Green, what are you doing?" The immediate reply was, "Too late Governor, it's done." I do not remember if 'Johnnie' hit the Top Theatres but Arthur Prince's beautifully dressed act certainly did.

On the subject of vents, readers may remember a chap named Smith, who had three or four youth lads, a bit drunk - that was an act of laughter. Then there was Arthur Worsley, who I think is still going and a Frenchman named something like Wenceles. I remember also doing a week with Peter Brough, in Reading I think, who showed me a beautiful car head lamp he managed to purchase. One night when he left the Theatre to drive home to London, someone had stolen his new lamp. That same week I was told a man had been seen inside my car, trying to start it. Luckily I had had the starter moved back almost under the driving seat where even I had to press the bottom of the seat backwards to get my heel on it. Many cars were stolen from around the Theatre in those days but mine never was. The number was ERE 111 and it was the car best known to all the lorry drivers, long-distance and otherwise, during the war days.

I was always 'good' for a ticket in any Theatre where I might be appearing and we nearly always ate in the lorry drivers' cafés. They were certainly gentlemen of the road and more than one occasion when I had punctures and was trying to change tyres, a lorry would stop, the driver say, "Hey, Monte, let me do that" and in no time I was on my way again without even dirty hands, plus the fact that Maisie probably had a gift of a pair of silk stockings. How nice it was to be known and to have a good name among the long distance drivers.

Before the advent of the present speedy motorways to Birmingham, Glasgow, etc., on had to go up 'the Shap' to get to Glasgow, which was a tedious climb. There was a café somewhere before the beginning of this climb where Maisie and I used to have a 'cuppa' and a "Hello there". One Sunday, making for Glasgow, we left this café and got about half way up Shap, when the waterpipe from the radiator burst and so we were stuck in a sort of no man's land. We did not have long to wait. One of the 'Ministries' long distance drivers stopped to investigate our trouble. There was no possibility of getting a new rubber pipe, as it was Sunday, so the driver said, "Well, I can tow you to within fifteen miles of Glasgow but I dare not go further because our H. Q. is there. We were only too glad to agree. By the time we reached Lesmahagow, the windscreen and the car were black with mud and the brakes hardly useable but it was a great experience. We were still quite a number of miles from the family home in Muirhead but we phoned and asked them to find something to tow us in. We phoned again later and were told that the local coal lorry, driven by Cissie Wilson (who had been at school with me) was well on its way to fetch us home. So as we were in limbo, or almost, we relaxed and tried to sleep. We were brought to life by a terrible racket, the cause of which stopped alongside. This was Cissie, who explained that her silencer had dropped off her lorry and being Sunday she could not get it put right.

Off we went, the rackety coal lorry dragging the mucky ERE 111 and landed us finally in our village just as the folks were walking home from the local Kirk. Thus, entered the local boy who had made good - behind the local coal lorry (minus silencer) and sitting behind the filthiest, mud encrusted car ever seen in the village.

By now, you, (the reader) will have noticed how I jump from subject to subject but I must insist that this is my way of relating bits of my life and though they may not be in chronological order, they have the merit of being truthful. If I was obliged to research and get the dates exact, it would be 'work' instead of the fun it is.

At one time I had a passion for collecting car 'mascots' and had a change every other week. One week it would be a Rolls one, another week a beautiful silver lady and the most dangerous of all, a metal bird, with neck outstretched and as the car moved, the wind caused the wings to fly. Some of these were really a menace because had a jaywalker been hit by one like the bird, which protruded, there would have been a mess. Seemingly, I was not the only collector because although I had paid for mine, quite often the one in use would be pinched and I would have to buy another, which was probably stolen anyway.

I am going to jump back, for a moment, to pre-war, to three items I had forgotten until now. After leaving Geraldo and when working with Joe I went to Bournemouth for a week and did an occasional Sunday concert with Bernard Monshin and his Tango Band, mentioned earlier as being one of Geraldo's leading violinists. It was good fun working with Bernard. We also made one of those short Pathe Films together and if I remember correctly, he got me that Pathe short of 'Shake Hands with a Millionaire', which is still in existence and was used just two and a half years ago in Thames T.V.'s series 'LOOKS FAMILIAR'.

Another pre-war item was that a band led by Reg Edwards came to the Astoria to allow Jack White and his College Boys a holiday. Reg happened to have been contracted by B.B.C., to do a broadcast, in which he had some Spanish Tangos. Looking for a singer he found there was only one for this type and that one was Monte Rey. We rehearsed at the Astoria and one night before the broadcast we tried them out on the dancing public. That was when Joe Loss first heard me.

In nineteen thirty-six, I recorded a few vocals for 'Don Miguel and his Cuban Music', which excellent band never appeared in public, just on records. It was a great outfit because Don Miguel was none other than Phil Green.

Once, after I had gone solo, I had a week 'out' (resting) and filled it in by doing a couple of broadcasts with the band of Oscar Rabin and Harry Davies, a most pleasant week. This I think, completes the list of everyone for whom I sang.

Looking back, I remember a very nice supporting act, 'Bob Kearns and Mary Lou'. We both liked them and Mary was one of the most beautiful girls we ever met on stage. Apart from the back-chat, Bob was the only one in those days who played the guitar and sang. He had a fine deep baritone voice and had he been a youngster today, would have made a fortune. We stood in for them when they married in Caxton Hall.

Of course, as I said earlier - often people we liked were ships that pass in the night - so we did not meet them as often as we wished.

G. H. Elliott, billed as 'The Original Chocolate Coloured Coon' was an act we met occasionally on Moss Empire tours. He was another of the real 'pros' who came up the hard way like Georgie Wood, was a stalwart of the Theatre and had been going a long time before I met him. He despised the use of the 'mike', but by the time we met most 'number one' Theatres had mikes in the footlights, so unknown to himself he was miked.

One of the sad things I remember was the breaking up of a partnership on stage. There was a great double act called Murray and Mooney whose timing and material were a great joy to watch and hear. I used to slip through the 'fire door' between stage and auditorium to watch them. They were top liners, yet they split, each taking a new partner. They were never the same. It was as if today's Morecombe and Wise were to split up and try to find suitable substitute for each other.

Ronald Frankau (of the famous Frankau family) and I often met on bills. He was a 'posh' gentleman - Eton I think, who billed himself as 'The low High-Brow'. On occasions, he would start his act with "My name is Frank, my wife's the cow" and so it went on - very clever, polished material. He was a brilliant man off stage as well. Once we were joined (Manchester I think) by Carroll Gibbons, the famous pianist from the Savoy Hotel and Carroll asked Maisie and I to join him at a supper (we were all in the same hotel) which he was giving for two charming and unsophisticated elderly ladies. He forgot to ask Ronald but Ronald joined us and was his most brilliant, brittle, witty self, so poor Carroll never quite knew what was happening. During the evening, Ronald turned to Maisie and said said, "Maisie, my dear, you don't have to worry about me, I look at you with fatherly eyes" - to which Maisie replied, "Ronald, if my father ever had the look in his eyes that you have as you speak these words, I'd throw him out of the house." All of which was Greek to the old ladies but I know Carroll heaved a sigh of relief when that party was over. Not that Ronald did or said anything out of place that the old ladies would understand, he was too much of a gentleman but it was what he might have said, which unnerved Carroll.

Ronald's pianist was Monte Crick and when he died I took over Monte as my pianist. Later, he became Dan Archer and was a great success in the 'Archers', until he died.

I think I have mentioned Nat Mills and Bobbie and they were not the most classic of double acts but to me they were the funniest. I once made the mistake of watching them, from the front. I was nearly on the floor laughing and as I had to sing later, I had to stop watching them, ever again.

I think it was in Sunderland that 'Dave and Joe O'Gorman', 'Scott Saunders' and myself were on the same bill. Scott was a great performer, though the bane of managers. Some of his gags were a bit naughty, so he would have a visit from the manager between houses and he would be told to leave such and such gags out. He would begin his act in the second house saying, "I shall pass this way but once, if what the amanager says is true", then would go on to replace the gagged gags by a few more, slightly worse. Dave and Joe O'Gorman were one of the old time great acts and their billing read, 'Laughter in the Roar'. It was very apt billing. There was some sort of feud (at least on Scott's part) between Scott Saunders and the O'Gormans. What it was we never found out, but by mid-week after we had had some bombs dropped, every night, in the vicinity, Scott came into our room and knowing Maisie had a typewriter asked if she would 'do' a letter to his agent for him. Of course, she consented. He began by abusing the manager "That 'bath steward' had ruined my act by making me remove nine gags so far; the bldy bombs have kept me awake at nights; but worst of all you've put me on the same bill as Dave and Joe O'Gorman" and ended with, "What a bldy week." Maisie typed it, just as he wanted, swear words and all, so he was most profuse in his thanks. As I said, I never knew what was wrong between them but we found the O'Gormans very nice people and a great act.

I have already spoken about George Wood but in addition to him, on one occasion there was Syd and Max Harrison, billed Crazy Comics. Crazy was the right word. I think they were Irish but they certainly were funny and 'time' never mattered very much to them. This was at Finsbury Park Empire, London and on this bill was also a nice soprano named Kathleen Moody. She married Lew Grade and gave up the stage. Lew Grade today, of course, is Lord Grade. I often worked for the 'then' Lew Grade and rarely had a contract other than a handshake. He was a man of his word and once, when one of his touring managers hopped it with all the company's salaries, he asked me on the phone to pay the acts and he would send me what he owed, the following week. I did and he did. Maisie got a tough part; the youngster was a Glasgow lad and as we were in Glasgow the week following that unfortunate weekend, she had to go and break the news to his mother. I do not remember the result but when Maisie came back she had obviously been having a good cry. There was no prosecution.

Once, in Wolverhampton Hippodrome we had an act called 'Gay and Gay - comedy acrobats'. They were very strong athletes and the name Gay was a misnomer for either one. Beryl Orde was also on that bill; Beryl was an excellent impressionist but at times her impressions were a bit cynical. She was very popular, as she had done a lot of Radio.

To finish writing about acts (excepting one) the most polished double act I ever saw was Billy Caryll and Hilda Mundy. They needed a man to be 'caught' with Hilda and as I still had a yen to be a comic (though subdued) I always offered to be that man.

Owen McGivney, the 'Quick Change Artist' was our best friend in the Theatre. Owen had had an amazing life and had an amazing act. He did a bit of Dickens and changed like lightning from character to character. He had to be a good actor, as well as a quick change man. He had two helpers off stage, his brother and Sam Smith, about whom, more anon.

Sometime in the twenties Owen had retired in America, a dollar millionaire. In nineteen twenty-seven, he woke up one morning to discover he was broke, the banks had failed. He had not become an American citizen and felt he would just have to start all over again. I do not know what age he was, But he was not young, though incredibly fit when I met him. By the time the war broke out he was on his feet again, no longer broke.

At the outbreak of War, being an Englishman, though obviously over fighting age, he felt he ought to come home and see if there was anything he could do. He left his wife and two children in America (and a third on the way)- I think Betty must have been over twenty years younger than he. Owen found there was nothing he could do so started to work on Stage and it was when doing this that we met and became fast friends. Anytime I was doing a tour of the smaller Theatres, Owen was on that bill. Then his problems became serious; he wanted to send money to his wife but found to his dismay that this was not allowed. She and his family were Americans. The only way he could reach her with cash was for Betty and the kids to go to the Bahamas and that indeed was a costly business, as it was then the playground of the rich. Once more, Owen was getting hard hit.

Until America came into the War he could not get his family into this country. I do not know exactly when they did come but when they arrived, Owen, Maisie and myself and ERE 111 were at Southampton to meet them. One night after the War was over, we three and Bobby Howes were in a Hotel in Leeds when the phone rang from Hollywood, trying to reach Owen McGivney. When he picked up the phone it was Red Skelton, asking him to come to the Hollywood Bowl for a Show, which he did and the Show lasted for two years. Maisie and I saw them off at Southampton. When he died, Owen was well over eighty and still the fittest man I ever knew. Betty and I still communicate every Christmas.

When Owen was touring with me I had to sack my baggage man cum assistant Stage Manager, for fighting. On one occasion, in Finsbury Park Empire, he was climbing the stairs to the electrician's platform to 'get at him' for some slight error. Maisie spotted him in time. At Peterborough, there had been a slight mix up and when Maisie and I left the Theatre after the last show, there was the 'bold bhoys', waiting to fight the whole staff. He was nice, reliable as a baggage man, loyal to us both but he just had to go. We were sorry indeed.

This left us in a bit of a spot but one of Owen McGivney's assistants came to the rescue and helped Maisie out, in addition to doing his part for Owen. That is how and when we acquired Sammy because when Owen left for America, we took Sammy on as baggage man, assistant Stage Manager and Jack of all trades.

There were many more acts I could have mentioned but one has to stop somewhere, so I apologise to many who have not been mentioned. Ah! One more who could never be forgotten was the 'Mirthful Music Master', HERSCHEL 'JIZZ' HENLERE. No Theatre ever dared to put him in any spot barring the last on the bill. He simply just went on playing and playing and even when the final curtain had fallen, he still went on playing. He was terrific but the despair of all managers, more than one of whom, used to say, "Give the ----- the keys of the Theatre and let him lock up when he's tired." What a character.

The greatest man I have ever known, without a shadow of doubt, was 'Jock' the cobbler.

Remember the incidents about which I wrote; the con man, the dog eating the 'Morning Glory' and the fact that I had gone to Harley Street, as I had such rheumatism or arthritis in my neck.

Those visits did no good and the neck got so bad, that when singing, the pain gradually crept from the back of my neck to my under jaw until it was simply hell to keep singing.

Travelling in the car, this pain would occur and at times it was so bad that I had to stop and exercise my neck. Finally, having tried what Harley Street and Welbeck Street could do, I knew that at any moment I would have to give up singing.

I had a couple of great friends in Harley Street, the husband being probably the greatest throat specialist in London. I was telling him of my fears, when to my great surprise, his wife said, "Don't give up till you've seen 'Jock'!" Naturally I said, "Who in such and such name is Jock?". Whereupon Cyril said, "Um-um-ah-well, he might be ah - he might be-ah-useful." He was very reluctant and would not have spoken had I not been a very distressed friend.

Leaving out the ums and ahs, Jock was a shoemaker who had had some remarkable results but there was no logical reason why he should have these results. I said, "You mean he's a quack". Cyril said, "No". The upshot being that (grasping at straws) I was taken by his wife to a sort of half bombed-out property in Camden Town into a room filled with new shoes, old boots and shoes and hampers to sit on.

With Jock, no matter if you were Duke or Roadsweeper, you took your turn in the queue. Finally, it was my turn, so Cyril's wife took me in and made the introduction. What I saw was a small man (whom I learned had been in the 'Bantams' in the Boer Wars) with an accent between 'Glesca and Belfast' but about whom there was something arresting. His first words were "You can sing dam all, you never sing a decent Scottish song". Then, having got that off his chest he said, "Sit down and take off your left shoe." He held my foot in his hands and after a moment said, "This pain in your neck - you once had an accident?" "True, I said, "but that was many years ago; about twenty-six I think. I was sledging and had a head on collision and broke my nose but having been forbidden by my father to sledge, I pulled my nose back into shape while it was still numb and not painful and all that was noticeable was a slight slight swelling." "That wasn't the worst damage," he replied, "you also damaged your foot, the metatarsus in fact and that defect gradually unbalanced your spine and that is your trouble. I'll sole your shoes." Just like that, and it sounded daft!

On the advice of my friend I had taken an extra pair of shoes, so handed them over to Jock. You can imagine my thoughts, visions of goblins and witches and "What the heck am I doing here? It's all mumbo jumbo." Jock ripped off the existing sole, shave a piece of leather, not as thick or long as a match stick, put it in a certain place, then resole the shoe and balanced the other shoe by just resoling it. "That'll be thirteen shillings," he said and that was that.

Reader, please get this picture, my neck had more or less siezed up and if I wanted to look sideways, my shoulders had to turn slightly as well. I left Jock's in a state of bewilderment. I had asked him if he was a spiritualist and he angrily assured me he was not, he was a cobbler and did not believe in spiritualism. Cyril's wife assured me I would get well after I had worn Jock's shoes for a few days. We were living at Myatts Park at that period and I took the dog, Whisky, for a short walk every morning. Three or four days after seeing Jock, I felt when rounding a corner, I was going to fall sideways, for a second and grasped a wall, at which moment I heard Whisky and a strange dog having a growling match. I swung round, still holding the wall and told Whisky to behave and to my astonishment realised I had turned my head and not my shoulders. I ran like a hare back to our flat and shouted, "Maisie - it worked - I can nearly look over each shoulder without having to move my body." And from that day to this I can turn my neck all I need to and I never again had that awful pain, which so nearly made me retire, early in my solo career.

Jock was poor, yet I know he had many clients, like myself, who could and would willingly have paid well. I became very close to this little man and one day I suggested he should charge more. Jock was no saint but in his reply to me no sergeant-major could have beaten his language and after he had finished by saying, "You talk as if your * belly guided you", he said, "Have you forgotten there was once a Man who came down to Earth and helped folks. He removed pain, yet they crucified Him. Who the * am I that I should grow rich because in my little way I can help."

Before he died, I was sent for and he showed me his hand and said, "That's what told me what was the matter with those who came for help." In the hand was a mark, as if a large nail had been driven through it. Believe it or not, I know many of the things he did and for the poor it was always, "No charge".

I shall finish this note as I began, "The greatest man I ever met was 'JOCK' - a cobbler.

Cassette Review

Here we have two cassettes reissuing from 78 rpm discs the work of Welsh artistes. We would imagine that as 78's, the records had but limited sales (relatively) because of the language. But in these days when we are accustomed to buying reissues of singers for the beauty of their voices irrespective of the language in which they sing, I would expect the appeal of these cassettes to be universal. This new series has started off in fine form.

ADIAIS - AH 1 is of twelve pieces sung by LEILA MEGANE recorded between 1923 - 1927. She won a coveted prize in the 1910 National Eisteddfod of Wales and studied under Sir George Power and Jean de Reszke. She sang at the Opera Comique, Paris, then made her Covent Garden debut in 1919 in the role of Massenet's "Therese". But she turned her career to the concert platform.

Here we have: He shall feed his flock (Handel): Agnus Dei (Bizet): A summer night (Goring Thomas): Songs of Egypt (Granville Bantock): Dream in the twilight (R. Strauss): Death & the Maiden (Schubert): Amour viens aider (Saint-Saëns): My little Welsh home (Gwynn Williams): and four Welsh folk songs arranged by her husband T. O. Roberts - Dafydd y Gareg Wen - Y Bwthyn Bach To Gwellt - Cymru Annwyl - Y Nefoedd.

Miss Megane possessed a big voice which would have carried well in the Opera or Royal Albert Hall. Her powerful, yet finely-controlled voice overcomes the technical needs of the recording system, the acoustics especially. Agnus Dei is especially beautiful. It is good to have an authoritative version of the Granville Bantock - Songs of Egypt. Having been interested in genuine folksong/music all my adult life I am pleased that this selection includes Welsh songs. David of the White Rock will be familiar to all, sung here with majesty. The other songs are less familiar, but equally fine. We do not know the full extent of Miss Megane's recorded repertoire, but the overall effect heard here could be described as "stately & grand", for no quick songs are included. If you collect recordings of the great voices of the past you should certainly purchase and enjoy this.

PENILLION A CHANEUON GWERIN

Roughly translated, the title of this collection becomes, 'traditional folk singing'. Four Welsh singers are included.

MABLE PARRY (mezzo-soprano) rec. 1930 = Y Gelynen ; Can Aredig ; 'Ble'rwyd Ti yn Myned? ; Deryn Y Bwn o'r Banna ; Titwm Tatwm ; Cysga Di, Fy Mhlentyn Tlws ; Cob Malltraeth ; A Fynni Di Fab Fel Myfi?

OWEN BRYNGWYN (baritone) rec. 1929 = Dacu Nghariad ; Wrth Fynd Efo Deio i Dywyn ; Ffarwel i Langyfelach Lon ; Y Cobler Du Bach.

WILLIAM EDWARDS (tenor) rec 1930. Harp accompaniment by Telynores Gwyngyll. = Breuder Bywyd ; Fy Olwen ; Molawd

THE FRED GAISBERG DIARIES — Part 7

1765

(We are grateful to the courtesy of Mrs. Edith Wyler for her permission to print this extract from the Diaries.)

1902 - March.

Will and I spent two weeks in Milan, and on Easter Sunday we (30th. March) spent in beautiful Venice, and visited a great many interesting places. We saw the Campanile in front of St. Mark's Church on the Piazza San Marco. This Campanile has since collapsed after standing 800 years.

While in Milan Mr. & Mrs. Owen and Mr. & Mrs. Clark passed through. We saw two Scala productions, Germania by Franchetti. Produced for the first time with San Marco - baritone, & Caruso - tenor, Pinto as soprano. Also a Memorial Production of Verdi's 'Il Trovatore' in memory of his death last year.

We next went to Rome, where we remained five days. During this time we made records of the Sistine Capella, the celebrated male choir of the Pope. The soprano voice parts are all sung by men who have been operated upon in their youth. During the last session an accident happened that might have proven serious. A fire started where we were working, and in a moment there was a big blaze. All the singers rushed out panic-stricken. Will & I and the Michaelises worked like Trojans and soon gained the upper hand, and saved the Company from big damages, as we were working in a salon of the Palace of the Bishop of Rome. Reports of this occurrence reached London & America and appeared in the Italian papers.

Will and I under private guidance went through some inaccessible parts of the Vatican and St. Peter's, besides visiting a number of grand churches I had never seen before and the Capitoline Museum. We visited the church of San Sebastian, where the penitent Christians crawl up the stairs on their knees, saying a prayer on each step. These steps were brought from Mt. Gethsemane. Also the magnificent cathedral of St. Paul and St. Giovanni.

We stopped in Florence a day and visited one of the many art galleries. As we were driving along one of the streets whom should we meet - also in a carriage - but R. G. Knowles and his wife.

(Pencilled note: Ap-May, 1902) Returning to Milan we made records of Caruso, San Marco, Pinto, and Bruno. Then went to Zurich, where Will left me and went to London. I remained a few days and then returned to London by way of the Rhein River, going first to Mainz and embarking on one of the little steamers sailed through the famous castles and bergs of the Rhein - also by the much-sung-about Felsenriffel and the Lorelei rocks. I spent a few hours in Cologne visiting the Cathedral and returned to London.

This Spring we made records of such celebrities as Plançon, Van Rooy, Calve, Suzanne Adams, Scotti, Bispham, Renaud.

The postponement of the King's Coronation disappointed us very much, as we had secured our seats and so forfeited the money. So when Edward VII really was crowned we thought we would escape the mob and left on Aug. 8th. for Paris. Will stayed until the following Monday. I remained on until the following Thursday night. Since then I have been preparing for my trip to India & Japan. We have moved from 31. Maiden Lane W.C. to 21. City Road E.C., our new premises. Since giving up our flat, we have been living at 46. Gower Street.

Aug. 19th. 1902. Friday. I have got Mr. Owen to promise Will a raise to £7 per week, and also he promised to give Will some stock in the Company at Christmas time. I made Will a present of 500 shares of stock. I bought 1000 for myself for 12 shillings a share. To do this I borrowed £300 from a bank. Note due Jan. 12th. 1903.

Sept. 20th. Saturday. Rhinehart and I started for Dusseldorf, Germany, arriving there 12 o'clock Saturday night.

Sunday morning we spent at the Exposition & at 12 o'clock noon we met Emil Berliner at the station. We lunched together and then visited the Exposition. We were especially impressed by the Art & Manufacturing sections and iron work of the Krupp exhibit. I found Emile Berliner very genial, and the trip well worth my while. We returned Sunday night, arriving in London Monday morning. The rest of the week was a busy one, finishing my preparations for fishing. I bid goodbye to my various friends, made a will and appointed my brother Will my sole attorney.

I spent Wednesday evening at Byfleet with the Owens and Thursday at Royals.

Friday Sept. 28 - 1902. I left Liverpool Street Station

12. 30 o'clock. The Vaile boys, French and F were down also. The Owens & Royals and Ed Footman and Will. The latter 4 went down to Tilbury Dock to see us off. Half an hour after we got on board the word was given for all strangers to go ashore, and we pulled out into the docks; but it was not until 6 o'clock that we got into the River.

The weather all the way to Marseilles was fine, but we were unable to see anything of Gibraltar, as we passed it early in the morning. I was just able to see it in the distance. The weather in the Bay of Biscay was good. The glimpses from time to time of the various points of the Spanish coast made this trip interesting. We had a fine view of Cape St. Vincent before Gibraltar - also after going up the east Spanish coast fine views of the Sierra Nevada and the Balearic Islands.

Friday noon we reached Marseilles (Oct 3rd). We had a jolly drive through the city and up to the Cathedral Notre Dame, situated on a high prominence overlooking the sea and city. We had dinner at the Hotel Continental in company with Mr. & Mrs. Peter & Miss Johnson & the Doctor, also the Addises. The dinner was a very jolly affair. After dinner all the ladies and Mr. Peter returned to the boat; and Addis, Doctor & myself went to a Variety Show and saw a little café life - which is distinctly gay in this city - then returned to the boat. This city more or less is like other Mediterranean cities I have visited - Genoa and Naples. Hilly streets almost always in the shape of stairs, & dirty.

Oct. 4 - Saturday morning very rainy. Left dock 12 o'clock and immediately in the Gulf of Lyons ran into an awful storm. Everyone was down sea-sick. I was not exactly bad, but felt it. George & Mr. Addis pitiful.

Sunday bright and calm. Passed through the Bonifacio Straits between Corsica & Sardinia.

Monday passed the volcanic island of Stromboli and Straits of Messina. Here we had a beautiful view of the shore Italy and Sicily, also Mt. Aetna in the distance.

Oct. 11th. Arrived at Port Said. We did a little shopping and strolling through the Port. This is the gate to the Canal. This Canal was commenced in April 1859; ten years later it was finished. Some 7000 vessels pass through yearly. The time of passage is usually 24 hrs. Width between the banks is 90 ft., depth 24 ft. Total length is 102 miles. We passed a number of laden camels and Arabs, who helped to form very interesting pictures. At Suez we took on water & provisions, but did not go ashore. Weather very hot. Our passage through the Red Sea very very hot. We sleep on deck.

Weds. 15th Oct at 6 o'clock a.m. we arrived at Aden, Arabia.

Supposed to be one of the hottest places in Creation, and I believe it. We went ashore before breakfast, and hired a carriage to drive us to the European town and the water tanks, supposed to have been built by King Solomon. They are a huge undertaking, and do the Ancients great credit. They are up in the hills, and catch enough rain water to supply the town 7 years. In the old days rainfalls were 7 years apart, but that time has lessened to 3 years.

The city was exceedingly interesting and picturesque. All draft animals were camels, and dirty-looking camels at that. The natives were dressed in gowns & children were naked. The weather was burning hot, and two hours ashore was enough to make us glad to return to the shade of our ship. One sees a number of interesting types here - any number of Numidians, Abyssinians, Arabians and Egyptians, etc. After leaving Aden, we were in plain view of Africa for some time.

Oct. 22nd. Wednesday about 4 o'clock we arrived at Colombo. We lose a number of good ship acquaintances here and take on a large number of new ones.

We remained in Colombo until 7 o'clock p.m. the following day. Immediately the boat struck anchor I went ashore with the Dr. We hired a carriage and drove all over the town, then up the Marine Parade to the Galle Face Hotel, then over the Cinnamon Gardens. Ceylon is intensely interesting to me for the fact it is my first view of a tropical country with its novel vegetation. It brings back remembrances of books I read in my boy days - Robinson Crusoe, or Swiss Family Robinson. I saw the famous bread fruit trees both in bloom & in fruit. The fruit growing on the trees looks like an egg-plant, only green instead of purple. I saw the famous mango trees, with its complicated roots running down from the branches to the ground. One tree covers nearly a quarter of an acre of ground. Next the coconut palms in fruit. Also the banana.

The great industries of Ceylon are raising of coconut and tea. The entire island is girded with a belt of yellow sand and thick band of coconut palms. Besides these we see the bamboo, talipot, and araca palms, rice, cinnamon, sugar cane. The natives are called Cingalese and are a brown, well-built people. The men all have long hair, and do it up in knots with a large tortoise-shell comb, just like a woman. They are fine built and (have) good, even features. Here is also the home of the Catamoran catamoran craft, and miles before you land you can see hundreds of the queer sailing craft. They are built of a huge, hollowed out log about 18 ins broad, and to this is attached a mast and large square sail. To balance this narrow boat, two arms are stretched out with a log attached, resting on the water. This makes it almost impossible to overturn it.

Thursday morning early, I rose and took a long ride in a ginricksha over the city, and made some good snapshots. I had breakfast at 9 o'clock, and about 11 o'clock started for Mount Lavana, about 7 miles distant. The ride going was enchanting. The railway is built along the coast, so on one side you have the ocean breaking on the shore, and on the other side the beautiful, graceful palm-nut groves. We passed a fisherman village and had a chance to see the catamorans closely.

Mt. Lavana is a regular paradise, and we spent a most entrancing three hours there. Had a good lunch with Mr. McClarren, Cooper & Doctor. Saw a juggler perform, and among other things he did was to produce the growing mango trees. I took a number of photos here. The chaps all carry a cobra. We returned to the city about 4 o'clock and lounged around the Hotel Bristol, then went on the boat.

Friday 24th. Once again on my floating home. We have about 30 or 40 new faces, and it sort of disturbs our family.

Saturday night we had a whist tournament in which I took part. Weather good.

Sunday 26th. Passed off very quietly with a church service in the morning.

Monday night. We had a fancy dress ball that was a great success. The quarter deck was gaily was trimmed with bunting. I went as a Japanese, George as a white-eyed Kaffir. The boat was perfectly still, so we were able to dance without any trouble. The reason of this was that we were anchored in the River Hugley. As this river is dangerous navigation on account of the swiftness of the ebb and sandbanks, boats can only proceed by day.

Tuesday morning we proceed at sunrise up the river. We passed great numbers of the jute factories that form the principal industry of this part of Bengal. We arrive at the jetty at 12 o'clock. Hawd was down to meet us, and we bid goodbye sorrowfully to our inmates of a month, and took quarters in the Great Eastern Hotel. In the afternoon we visited our shop in Dalhousie Sq. and at night we had dinner in the Grand Hotel. We found the dinner very poor in this hotel as well as in the Great Eastern. In fact the meats are so smelly and everything so poor and cooked with that peculiar eastern flavour that for the first week we could hardly enjoy anything at all.

Wednesday, Oct. 29 - George & I arose early and took a walk through the Diadem Park. We had breakfast at 9 o'clock. Then tries to get our cargo out of Customs House, but were disappointed. That I dined aboard the 'Coromandel' with Dr. de Majeon, and enjoyed a fine dinner, as the cooking and victuals are far superior to the best hotels in the east.

Thursday, Oct. 30. George and I took an early morning trip to the Kali Ghat, or sacred bathing place of the Hindus. We took the electric trams and rode about 5 miles, passing through the native quarters. This was awfully interesting to see the semi-barbaric way in which the people live. Filth and smell. As we approached the temple there was a long line of filthy beggars and cripples. One fanatic was lying outstretched on a board of spikes. The whole sight was horribly repulsive. Each worshipper carries with him what looks like a bag of grain, and as he passes the line of beggars he gives each a handful. We were not allowed to enter the temple, but we saw 3 young kids (goats) and the knives used to sacrifice them, and could hear the shouting and singing. As today we could do nothing, so after breakfast we visited the zoo, which is a very fine one of its kind.

That night we visited a native Parsee theatre. The play given was a version of a "Comedy of Errors", in which a railway train and a bridge catastrophe was introduced. There was also introduced a number of songs. The orchestra consisted of a small portable organ, a kettledrum, and a sort of Japanese fiddle. The music was considerably better than I expected, and had a well-defined rhythm. This show lasts from 9 to 1.30. We only remained an hour. The acting was tame and child-like, and all the actors seemed anxious to make themselves as near white as possible as they were smeared with whiting.

Friday, 31st. October. Another holiday. In the morning before breakfast we took a walk through the New Market to see the most wonderful sight of all - the different merchants and native dealers offering all sorts of wares, trinkets, vegetables, meats, fruits, etc., etc. It is a wonderful sight.

After tiffin we went by carriage to the Botanical Gardens, situated about 10 miles down the river. In going, we pass through those dirty, interesting villages. As the Gardens are on the other side of the river, we cross in a primitive native boat. The Gardens are very extensive, and among the most striking features are the beautiful avenues of great palm trees, and the great variety of all sorts of tropical trees and plants, including mahogany, teak, various palms, cactus plants. Here is a marvellous banyan tree 133 years old, covering an acre of ground and having 343 arial roots. By arial roots sunk down to earth by huge branches some 50 to 100 ft. in height. These roots come down to earth as straight as a plumb-line and make a grand support for the heavy branches.

Saturday, Nov. 1st. This morning an early morning walk through the busy native streets, and passed down Harrison Street where the native jobbing shops are. Here we saw great numbers of visiting merchants and peddlers from the country, and among them great numbers of Afghanistans. Fine large and intelligent men laying in stock.

Today we at last succeeded in getting our stuff out of the Custom House.

My usual day's programme is to rise at 6.30 - tea - bath, my man always assists me to dress, and prepares my bath and tea (I have a native bearer or valet). Then a walk until 9 o'clock then breakfast. tiffin or lunch at 1.30. At 7 o'clock I dress for dinner. Dinner at 8. Bed 11 o'clock.

Wednesday, November 5th. Visited the Burning Ghats, where the natives cremate their dead. There were about 10 fires burning, each containing a body doubled up. The other morning, each morning I saw a funeral procession. A bier, or plain stretcher with a coolie at each corner carrying it. The body covered over with a plain white cloth was laid upon this. About two dozen coolies followed. They went at a dogtrot, chanting a most heart-rending dirge. This was evidently the funeral of a coolie, as there were only naked coolies in attendance.

Thursday, Nov. 6th. We visited a number of theatres to secure talent. The Classic Theatre was the most interesting. They had a novelty in the way of a brass orchestra of about 14 band instruments, including tambooras of drums. Every instrument plays in unison. They also had a well-trained ballet of girls ranging from 12 to 16 years of age. All they wore was an almost transparent gauze gown.

We also attended a dinner and a nautch dance in a wealthy baboo's home in Harrison Road. There were about 40 Europeans present, and they ate by themselves. Not even would the host sit at our table. Now were any native woman present except the Nautch dancers, as these have lost their caste. After dinner we retired to a large salon over the dining room, and were entertained by the Nautch girls. The room presented a most interesting sight. At one end were the native gentlemen in their white gowns; now and then one would ornament his person with a string of diamonds or valuable rings. At the other end of the room were the Europeans in evening dress. The singing girl, followed by her musicians (amounting to two esrag or Hindustani violins, one tamboora with a right and left tamboora, and a pair of Mandieras - or two half-round bells), advanced slowly, singing all the while, around the room.

The music is very monotonous and every rhythm is repeated. A song consisting of 2 or 3 distinct phrases of music will be sung for perhaps an hour at a stretch, the only variation being in the drum traps or the introduction of some feat of vocalisation such as a run up and down the scale of seven notes. Many Eastern songs have no words, but are sung using the sol, fa, la, or solfeggio syllables. At the particular dinner we heard two popular dancing girls, one by name Ganherjan, a Mohammedan, rather fat and covered with masses of gold armlets, anklets, rings, pearl necklaces, masses of heavy earrings hanging about ten piercings in each ear. Her crowning adornment was a large diamond fastened on the side of her nose. Her teeth were quite red from beetle-nut chewing. Her chewing habit necessitated the presence of a bearer following her about with a silver cuspidor into which she would empty her mouthful, much to the distraction of their charms. She terminated each song with a most cleverly executed muscle-dance. This lady gets around 300 rupees an evening, and can often be seen driving in the Miadern in a fine carriage and pair. I met the lady at our Laboratory when she came to sing in our Gramophone, and was impressed by her sharpness and brightness. She sings in some twenty languages including Hindustani, Turkish Persian, Bengali, Kachee, Medrasi, Burmese, Gujrati, Tailungi. Their interpretation of Western music is very original. A great favourite is Molly Garden, but you could hardly recognise the tune before hearing it ten times. One of the girls was an Armenian Jewess. Of this class there is a large colony in Calcutta.

Friday, November 7th. I dined with Mrs. Henry, a passenger on the Coromandel. They live in a very nice house in Park Street.

Saturday, 8th. We made our first native records. Two little nautch girls 14 and 16 with miserable voices. They persisted in covering their faces and never got over the embarrassment we inspired. That afternoon we had tea with Mrs. Bonerjee at her magnificent home in Park Street. Mr. Bonerjee is a barrister in the High Court, and stands high in Calcutta circles. He is a native, educated at Oxford. She is an English lady. We pass a very agreeable time.

Sunday 9th. We paid a farewell visit to the Coromandel, lying off Gerden Reach. To get to it we had an hour's drive, and then hired a dingy - a native boat - and rowed to the ship. Capt. Bennett gave us a hearty welcome and invited us to tea in his cabin. We bade the officers and Dr. de Megian farewell. The Doctor and I had been very chummy during the voyage and his stay in port, always visiting different sights in each other's company. He is a counterpart of my friend Ed Footman. He is a Canadian, educated in England, France and Germany.

Monday 10th. Record-making. Had Mr. Pilgrim to dinner and a game of bridge whist. Mr. Pilgrim goes tomorrow to Burma for the Geologic Survey.

Tuesday, Nov. 11th. Recording the voices of Gouhurjan - a Mohammedan nautch girl & a Hindustani, who wrote her name herself. This lady is an Armenian Jewess. Each brought 4 musicians - 2 esrag, 1 tamboora, 1 pair mandieras. Her other attendants were a bearer for her pipe, & to prepare her beetle nut, one ayer or black girl attendant, one coolie to fan her, another girl to carry her cuspidor, and a coolie to carry the traps. Calvé came to our lab with far less courtesie and required much less attendance. The Mohammedan girl could lay considerable claim to coloratura voice. She performed with ease some very difficult vocalising such as scales and a sort of guttural trill which she drew our attention to herself, but at the end of the session when we reproduced Suzanne Adams' record of the 'Jewel Song' in Faust the little lady and her attendants were very much astonished by the rapid execution and the trills. Wed. Nov. 12. Recorded Gouhurjan again. This lady came even more elaborately dressed & wore a whole mine of jewels. We had a guess at her age. I thought 22 - Addis 25 and Hawd 30. Her real age is 45 and wonderfully preserved and youthful-looking. She wore the Mohammedan dress. A long black gauze cloth embroidered with real gold lace, and so draped about that it left the arms, stomach, and legs bare. She is very eccentric and I heard a story today of how some years ago her cat had a little of kittens. To celebrate the occasion Gouhurjan gave a fete at her home costing her 20,000 Re.

I forgot to mention an acquaintance, Mr. Johnson, the superintendant of police, accompanied us through China-town. This is a dangerous part of the world & it is very unsafe to venture here without police escort. We had 7 policemen. We entered a number of gambling dens and bet on the figures. I won 10 Re once. The game I played on is this. A board divided into twelve sections, 6 figures in red above the line & 6 figures in black (or characters) below the line. You select a character and put your money on it to win. Previously the banker has drawn from a bag, containing 12 similar characters, one character & places it in a small lacquer box and closes the lid, and lays it down on the table in front everyone. When all who want to enter the game have selected their characters and put up their money, the little box is opened and the character it contains is laid on the table. Those who have selected that character win 12 times what they put up. Another game they have is a table divided into four parts, numbered 1-2-3-4. You select any one to put your money on. The banker has a pile of shells, from which he takes a small quantity at random. The remainder he counts in fours. The integral part of 4 left is the winning number. In every one of the half a dozen places we visited were crowds of Chinamen, and in some cases we saw watches & rings on the table. They are insane at gambling. We also visited a Joah House or church and a number of opium joints, and saw how a Chinaman proceeds when he puts himself under the influence of the drug. In one bed we saw a European.

Thursday Nov. 13 - Recording. Dined with Mr. Duncan, who resides in the mint compound.

Friday 14. Dined at the Hotel de Paris with Mr. Johnson.

Saturday 15. This morning we saw a sacred procession given by the Jones (?Janis) Club, the jewellers of Calcutta. It gave me a good idea of the gorgeousness of an Eastern pageant. They carried a number of costly idols, temples, and symbols. The different men wore strings of pearls and diamonds, emeralds, costly silks and plush. Mounted on beautifully caparisoned horses were young boys wearing bracelets and necklaces of small fortunes. The most incongruous part were the miserable alleys and lanes they passed down, and the vast mob of almost naked spectators.

Sunday 16th. Today we made 30 records of the "Classic Theatre Orchestra" consisting of two baritone horns, one cornet, two clarinets, two drums (native tambooras), and a set of triangles. They all play in unison.

Monday 17. I visited some of the palaces of a Rajah family. Driving through an endless number of narrow streets, we suddenly came upon a magnificent courtyard. Entering, we pass through an inner court of marble and mount a staircase to the Reception Saloon. There is nothing particularly striking or different from a European palace except they are mad on crystal chandeliers. I met Raja Torje, a very polished gentleman, a fine face and presence. I inspected a joiners' shop. They work in very confined spaces - always on the floor, using most primitive tools, but turn out most exquisite work.

Tuesday 18. Made records of members of the Corinthian Theatre. At night I attended a reception and the theatrical in the Palace of Bahadur, the wealthiest jeweller in Bengal. This gentleman's home is built of glass mosaics inside and out. His gardens are laid off in paths of glass and stone mosaics, fountains and small lakes scattered all over. At one end of the garden is a temple built of stone mosaics and gold trimmings. Inside are some costly idols with eyes of priceless gems. Visitors took off their shoes and walked up the stairs to peep in the doors. The whole scene, lighted up with thousands of small fairy lamps reminded one of a page in the Arabian Nights tales. About 400 Europeans in evening dress and 3,000 local gentlemen in their flowing robes of linen, silks of various colours and sparkling with gems and jewelry, together representing a hundred different nationalities.

Wed 19th. to Thursday 27th little of interesting except routine life. I attended one or two 'at homes', and so got an insight to Calcutta social life. At one musicale I assisted in the entertainment. Here were gathered a very cosmopolitan crowd - Armenians, Greeks, Americans, Scotsmen, English; our host was German, an Otto Ect - also Austrians, Spanish & Italians. No doubt other nations were represented. I went to the theatre (English) with a young American Mr. Lusk, to whom Harold Footman introduced me. This young man is a Yale graduate and represents the General Electric Co of America in the east. I have been in his company a great deal and have found him interesting and entertaining. I invited him today to a Thanksgiving dinner at the Hotel. I had ordered a turkey, cranberry sauce and mince pie, very good champagne, and also arranged the table prettily with American flags. After dinner we went to the Theatre and saw "The Adventures of Lady Ursula".

Dec. 6th. Today (Saturday) the Viceroy entered Calcutta. He passed down Dalhousie by the hotel to the White House accompanied by his Indian Guards. I got a snap of the show. Lord Curzon reminded in appearance of President Roosevelt. During the day I completed the packing and as we do not sail until the 10th. I occupied the four free days in taking a run up to Darjeeling, 350 miles from Calcutta. I took the train at 4 o'clock; by 9 o'clock we reach Damoodka on the right bank of the Ganges River. Crossing occupies about 30 minutes, and we sit down to dinner and eat comfortably until the ferry arrives at Sera Ghat. The river is about 1 1/2 miles wide and is one of the largest in the world.

We get on another train, and as I have brought my own bedding with me I make a very comfortable bed and have a good sleep until 6 o'clock a.m., when the plains end and we arrive at the bottom of the hills. To see the sun break over the snow-capped mountains was a glorious sight. This station is called Silliguri, and after breakfast we take the cutest little baby train in which to climb up the mountains 7000 feet. It is a two foot gauge steam train with open cars. We only go 7 miles per hour but climbing all the while. The scenery is grand. In places you pass through almost primeval forests, now along the cart-road or clinging to the edge of a ravine with a clear drop of a 1,000 feet below you. In places we have to switch forwards, then backwards, along the mountain-side in order to climb it; then again we curl around the crest of the hill like a spiral curve, passing all the while through the famous Darjeeling plantations of tea.

CORDELIA RHYS (soprano) rec 1915.

Penillion Pen Rhaw ; Ton - y - Melinydd ; Penillion Cadair Idris.

Mable Parry was a school teacher in Bangor most of her life, but her pure mezz-soprano voice was always in demand to sing the Welsh folksongs of which she was so fond. She adjudicated at Welsh National Eisteddfodau. Unfortunately, the eight songs in this collection are all that she recorded. Hers was a light soprano voice which is bright and interesting throughout. She sings these songs with a natural and unforced feeling. A joy to hear.

Owen Bryngwyn became a science teacher in 1907, but gave up in 1919 to study at the Royal College of Music and to devote the rest of his life to singing. He was in great demand for oratorio and concerts. He was also commended for his interpretation of Schubert Lieder. Most of his recordings were of Welsh songs. He brought to them a very pure and authoritative voice with wonderful phrasing and fine tone. His classical training has not taken him away from the feeling of his songs, which he had loved since his youth.

William Edwards is the artiste I prefer above the others in this collection, even though they are all excellent. He was a farmer/musician who was self-taught, like many

Crystal Palace Programme

The Vintage Light Music Society has reprinted a Crystal Palace Programme for the Saturday Concert of 19th. October, 1895.

If you are not old enough to have seen and walked in the Crystal Palace, you cannot possibly be told of the experience of that vast construction of glass, flora in plots, tubs, etc. One felt insignificant against it. I was only a boy when I went there but still have vivid recollections, so impressed was I. I also recall a kind of dismay on learning from the "wireless" that it had burned down. Against this magnificent backdrop, concerts and exhibitions were held. Colonel Gouraud went there with an Edison Phonograph to record concerts there. What a pity that none is known to exist.

On 19th. October, 1895, the music was from the pens of Hamish MacCunn, Hubert Parry, Arthur Sullivan, Walford Davies, Villiers Stanford, F H Cowen and A C Mackenzie. The conductor was August Manns. The soloists were Mrs. Helen Trust, soprano. The pianist was Mr. Frederick

A picnic party

Mr. Anthony Godwin, a member of the Bournemouth Symphony Orchestra, and some of his musical friends felt the need for "light music" properly played - which came between "symphony" and "pop". The Palm Court Orchestra was formed to give concerts when the musicians were not playing with the B S O and other orchestras. They have toured the country, so you may have had the pleasure of a concert in your neighbourhood.

There is a difference, though, for this is no 'Ordinary' palm court group with a limited tone and stock arrangements. This group's quality matches what one would expect from, say, Barnabas von Geczy or Marek Weber, or Dajos Bela. Each musician is a first-class performer and each programme contains variety of music and mood, for serious is combined with the humorous.

The record "The Picnic Party" is a typical programme as one would hear in the concert hall

Welshman even today whose hobby is singing after they have earned their bread and butter for the day. As soon as Edwards' voice came from my loudspeaker I thought of Leonid Sobinov, opera singer of Tsarist Russia. I find a similarity in the lyricism of their approaches. It is quite understandable that William Edwards' settings of 'penillion' became famous and that he won many prizes. The harp accompaniment of Telynores Gwyngyll is so sympathetic to the singer as to heighten one's pleasure, and point the expressiveness of the voice.

Cordelia Rhys was 60 years old when she recorded in 1915. The recording makes the piano sound a little dead-toned, but the voice comes through clearly. Although Miss Rhys had a formal singing training her style and voice is so natural that one feels she is straight from a village-concert (but not implying a second-rate performance), because of the 'freshness' in approach. But one realises that her career as a singer and teacher, having covered so many years, enabled her to achieve this artistry.

These two most interesting cassettes have not been mutilated by having too much treble and hiss removed. It might have been possible to eliminate a little more, but listeners can adjust controls to their own tastes. They are available from Adlonni, c/o John Davies, Glyddyn Mawr, Y Ffôr, Pwllheli, Gwynedd LL53 6RR, Wales. (The price is £3.75, I believe).

Dawson and the organist Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock. The notes to the programme are very comprehensive, and the section with other forthcoming attractions is interesting, as well as the notes on other exhibitions at the Crystal Palace. This all puts into perspective one's "feeling" & appreciation of what it stood for and must have meant to patrons of the time. Mention of the old London, Brighton & South Coast Railway, and the London, Chatham and Dover Railway adds a nice touch to the setting.

Stuart Upton, Hon. Secretary of the V. L. M. S. has added an appropriate note of "The Crystal Palace and the Gramophone".

This is a most interesting reprint for those interested in light music, the influence of the Crystal Palace on musical life. In fact, a useful piece of printed matter to go with your background-material on your collection. 40 pages

Price £1 from, Stuart Upton, Hon. Secretary, The Vintage Light Music Society, 4 Harvest Bank Road, West Wickham, Kent BR4 9DJ.

The Programme comprises:-

The Grasshopper's Dance (Bucalossi): There's a ring around the moon, vocal refrain by Tony Purkis : Black Eyes, with violin duet by Messrs Purkis and Witham : Silver Birds, with piccolo solo by John Braddock : Fiddlesticks Rag : I'm forever blowing bubbles, sung by Linda Murray accompanied by David Norton on musical saw : La Petite Tonkinoise : Whistle for me : In the shadows : Polly, with soprano saxophone solo by Anthony Godwin : Down in Zanzibar : Ragtime Double Bass Player, solo by Kevin Rundell : Two Little Sausages, sung by Linda Murray : In a Persian Market.

I confidently say that anyone liking "light music" will thoroughly enjoy this record. Chandos ABR 1022.

EDITORIAL

We apologise for the delay since our last issue. We had expressed a fear that there would be a delay owing to necessary renovation and decoration in the editorial home. Over the years an over-indulgence in records and this magazine had allowed it to become somewhat untidy and in need of paint and new wallpaper inside! We had not expected the rather sudden death of my father to whom I have tried to compose a little tribute on another page. Although I was always responsible for the typing and layout of the magazines, I have found it rather difficult to settle to prepair this issue.

Thus, it has taken on a different appearance from usual. Brian Rust had presented us with his listing of Berliner & other 7-inch records of the 'Gramophone Company' some while ago for publication as a separate booklet. We trust that he will not mind that we have published as an integral part of this issue, with its type shrunken down. Brian had typed the complete list out for us, and in the exceptional circumstances, we are grateful that he did. It has speeded up the production of this issue.

We hope that you will not mind that we do not have so many illustrations this time. But, you will have plenty to read through, and it is hoped, something to interest you.

Although the Berliner listing may not be 100% complete, we feel that it is a fine working list for our readers, especially as previously-published (all partial) lists have tended to ignore the orchestral, band and other instrumental records as if they were of no interest to anyone at all. This of course is an untrue and bigotted opinion.

We must now apologise to some particular contributors. . . . Firstly, we omitted to thank T O M S O A L in our last issue for the help he generously gave to Barry Pliskin in the preparation of the listing of Billy Milton's records.

We must also ask F R A N K A N D R E W S to refrain from throwing bricks at us. We should have printed his list of "STAR" RECORDS (to follow up his story of that make of cylinders). We felt, that having included the Berliner listing, it might perhaps be too much "listing" for one issue. Similarly, we hope that R A Y M O N D W I L E will also be patient about his Edison Disc list.

To the others who have submitted articles, we hope that we shall be able to circulate our next issue quickly so that they will enjoy the pleasure of seeing their essays in print - or their pictures published.

Thank you for your tolerance and patience. Ernie Bayly.

L A M I N A T E D ' B '

Some while ago, both Tom Gayton and Bill Kloet reported that they have L A M I N A T E D H M V "B" series records. These they reported were laminated in the same way as Columbia records of the same period. I never doubted the word or integrity of these two gentlemen. Recently Jeff Percival visited me. While regretting that he had broken his copy of H M V B2538 - Melville Gideon singing "The Blue Room / Charmaine". Jeff had brought the pieces to show me. It has a nice smooth-looking surface, and just under each "side" is a thin layer of white paper, between which seems to be coarser material.

"Go and ask 'im now, Bill, while he's got the 'Decca' on; he's sure to be in a good humour."

What a jolly time they have with the "Decca." All that is new and catchy in Revue and Musical Comedy, all their old favourites in songs, orchestral pieces, pianoforte and violin solos—whatever their fancy calls for they hear. Such an entertainment transforms the dreariest billet, the crudest dug-out into a veritable palace of delight. Surroundings are forgotten, the war is forgotten; they simply sit and listen to the "Decca," oblivious to everything but the pleasure of the entertainment.

Keep them smiling!

"We might have lost this war if it hadn't been for laughter," said an O. C. Officer to a famous War Correspondent. And as if in confirmation, a Sapper wrote that "when we are 'Deccaleless' we are losing."

The "Decca" is Theatre, Music-Hall, Concert Room, Band in one. It provides entertainment for all tastes, and, more than anything else, has kept the men at the Front cheerful.

The Decca has a beautiful tone of great volume and clearness. There is nothing muffled or "tinny" about it; the reproduction is absolutely natural. It is compact, portable, needs no case and directly opened is ready to play perfectly all makes and sizes of needle records.

RARE RECORDED EDITIONS

We have received notice that Rare Recorded Editions has reissued on to LP from 78 rpm discs, Volume 2 of the 1922 - 1925 recordings by Marek Weber's Orchestra. These are extremely uncommon in original form. This is RRE 189. There is also RRE 190, which brings us 'The Music of Sir Frederick Cowen. This brings us reissues of recordings that he conducted and other early recordings of his songs and music by other performers.

Each LP is priced £4.50 & is obtainable from Rare Recorded Editions, 54 Lymington Road, London NW6 1JB.

B E R T W I L L I A M S

This GREAT entertainer was born in Nassau, in 1874, but owing to his death at the age of 48, never made any electrical recordings. The uninitiated must be informed that there was a very clever & successful duo Walker and Williams. After Walker's earlier death Bert Williams continued alone, and by 1910 was one of the principal comedians in the Ziegfeld Follies, and remained there for season after season.

On this LP we are privileged to hear 14 of his songs, excellently transferred, so that we can hear all the words clearly. I highly recommend this LP for those who like Williams' work, for his 78 rpm discs are not commonly found, and the few made in Britain are positively rare (Zonophone & Columbia of Edwardian days). The songs are, Everybody wants a key to my cellar; Bring back those wonderful days; Brother low down; Unlucky blues; It's getting so you can't trust nobody; It's nobody's business but my own; O death where is thy sting?; The moon shines on the moonshine; I'll lend you anything; Woodman spare that tree; Purpostus; Eve cost Adam just one bone; You'll never need a doctor no more; Nobody.

I look forward to a Volume 2 !!!

K A T E S M I T H ' S Golden years of Broadcasting.

While still under 20 years old, this large lady was in musicals on Broadway, her voice and personality overcoming her size. On her 24th birthday, 1st May, 1931, she made her first broadcast of "Kate Smith Sings" and quickly became an American institution that went on for decades pleasing huge audiences.

This two-LP set is taken from her radio & TV shows. Again, it is very well done, despite the variety of originals. The selection shows Miss Smith in a cross-section of songs (but omits her famous signature-tune... a pity, for she was one of the first radio personalities to have a "permanent" signature).

We have, I surrender dear; It was so beautiful; Small fry; God bless America; White cliffs of Dover; Blues in the night; It's been a long, long time; September song; Knee deep in stardust; How about you?; Deep in the heart of Texas; Johnny Doughboy found a Rose in Ireland; Coming in on a wing and a prayer; I'll be seeing you; How are things in Glocca Morra?; Kerry Dances; Johnny one note; Wait for me, Mary; Fresh as a daisy; Taking a chance on love; Why don't you do right?; These foolish things remind me of you; If; The best things in life are free; I have dreamed; Mame; The way we were.

Again, a highly-recommended Sunbeam P510.

Oscar 'Papa' Celestin was born near New Orleans in 1884, by 1906 he was known to be a member of brass bands which were a feature of that city's life and by 1910 was leading his own band. During World War I he became co-leader of the Original Tuxedo Orchestra, until 1925 when he formed his Tuxedo Jazz Orchestra, whose records are reissued here, from the sessions in New Orleans 1926-1928.

The first four tunes were by a 7-piece band, which gradually grew slightly. Celestin led with firm, but gentle tone, and when the second cornet was added one is reminded of the more-publicised Louis Armstrong/King Oliver partnership, which was only acoustically recorded. The general feel of the whole LP is of a very rhythmical band bouncing gently along primarily for dancing, not straying too far from the tune, but with polyrhythmical improvisation that was a characteristic of New Orleans at that time. (A similar effect was achieved by Armand Piron.)

Various members of the band play solos with the others supporting. Richard Alexis and Guy Kelly are the second cornets and Bill Matthews is the main trombonist. Paul Barnes, alto saxophonist, came to London several times during the 1960's, where readers may have heard him play. Celestin himself appears never to have left the area around New Orleans, except to play in Washington for President Eisenhower in 1953 and appear in the film "Cinerama Holiday".

Well-transferred from the original U.S. Columbias by John Wadley, this is an important record for those interested in 1920's jazz and 'hot' dance music, and I'm sure you will enjoy it.

The tunes included are - I'm satisfied you love me; My Josephine; Station calls; Give me some more; Dear Almanzoer; Papa's got the jim-jams; As you like it; Just for you dear, I'm crying; It's jam up; The sweetheart of T K O; Ta ta daddy.

G E O R G E T R E V A R E & His Dance Orchestra, Vols 1 & 2

This Australian orchestra was formed by trombonist George Trevare who had worked in Jim Davidson's orchestra, also arranging for him. The 31 tunes collected here recorded 1943 - 1945 are nearly all those of the period that were played by similar bands in "Allied" countries.

Trevare's orchestrasounds to be largish, and includes violins. The producer's notes were destroyed, so no personnel or dates are given except for names of vocalists, of whom I recognised Dick Bentley because he became famous on British radio with Tony Hancock's hilarious programmes. Of the others, Johnny Fitzgerald, Joan Blake and Al Royal feature prominently and are all very pleasant.

The compiler says that the George Trevare sound may not have been original and hints that some tricks were 'borrowed' from the styles of U.S.A. bands and others. But was this not often done during the war years when personnel changes were frequent? Many British bands had less sparkling moments then, and the appropriate press grumbled about 'stock arrangements'. This was very unfair. In retrospect one can hear that those same 'stock arrangements' were far from being rubbish - in fact they were good and still played with great precision and attack, subtlety and taste. So, I would not belittle the George Trevare Orchestra in any way. I find it the equal of much in, say, the big World Records boxed-set of British Dance Bands of the same period.

If there is a fault, it seems to be that a small studio was used for the original recording sessions, for one can hear the reverberations of a small "box". . . . But, one can hear this very same fault on some of the "Bluebirds" of Glenn Miller's band, as well as British Bands.

These two LPs are highly recommended to lovers of dance bands of the 1940's. George Trevare's orchestra had style and class which will stand up well beside your other dance band records. The selection of tunes reissued includes sentimental, 'swinging' & novelty numbers, all with good ensemble passage and solos.

Don't sweetheart me; Long ago & far away; Blue velvet; There, I've said it again; Just like a lovely dream; Time waits for no one; For once in my life I'm lonely; Give me just another kiss; Johnny Zero; Comin' in on a wing and a prayer; No love, no nothin'; My heart tells me; Is there a story?; Dream; Der Führer's face; The bells of St. Mary's; Jungle Jive; There goes that song again; We mustn't say "Goodbye"; Say a prayer for the boys over there; Under the trees; Let's have one for the road; In my arms; Curl the Mo, Uncle Joe; Something's the matter with me; Sunday, Monday or always; Don't fence me in; Blue Dusk; you're charming, you're lovely tonight; Shoo shoo baby; Back to Coajingolong (a 'Dixieland' style tune by a part of the band).

Featuring the bands of James Reese Europe and Arthur Pryor, this LP introduces us to ragtime tunes played by military, or brass-style bands.

We have emphasised previously that this type of band was very important in the life of the people of our world before radio because through its medium many different kinds of music spread all over those countries to people who would otherwise have been limited in their musical experience. Paraphrases of, say, 'Rigoletto' by a brass band might not be considered ideal (!) now, but they did spread Verdi's (and others') airs to quite remotely situated communities.

Similarly, ragtime was essentially a piano music of the saloon and other undesirable places, but being spread about by bands to better places, it has gained the recognition its vitality deserved by a huge population, and also allowed many of its composers to live and work respectably eventually.

Arthur Pryor was a trombonist with the great John Sousa and became an assistant director with him before forming his own concert band. As such he would have directed the many early recording sessions - an occupation Sousa disliked. Pryor's Band had many "rags", "cakewalks", etc. in its repertoire so recorded many. Here the selections date between 1907 and 1912. They have been excellently transferred by John R. T. Davies. - Slippery Place Rag; Georgia Sunset Cakewalk; Temptation Rag; The African 400; The Ragtime Drummer; That Rag; The King of Rags; Canhanibalmo Rag.

I always feel that James Reese Europe is never accorded the importance that he deserves. He settled in New York in 1906, becoming an influence in circles of "light music" in that City and as well as leading his own Society Orchestra, organised other similar work for others of his (Negro) race. He was highly respected and when Vernon and Irene Castle established their famous "Castle House" dancing academy, James Europe led the band there. Unfortunately, Brian Rust's otherwise excellent notes, referring chiefly to ragtime music, overlook the fact that Europe, working with the Castles, must have had an enormous influence on the infant form of "ballroom dancing" with its foxtrots, etc., which progressed in a more orderly form thereafter.

James Reese Europe took the "Hellfighters" Band of the 369th U.S. Infantry Regiment to France in World War I and it was the best brass band in the U.S. Army. On its return to USA it was feted with a big parade down Broadway and toured the country until Europe was stabbed to death in Boston, in 1919. While in the war zone, the Band had other artistes with them and I feel that (although the music was "more modern") Glenn Miller's band in World War II was a direct copy or descendant of James Europe's example. He was the first to have the Army marching to St. Louis Blues style marches, not Miller!!.

Although his Victor and Pathé records have been well transferred by J. R. T. Davies, it obvious that the Band was inadequately recorded under the acoustic system. We hear - Memphis Blues; That moaning trombone; Hesitating blues; Too much mustard; Down home rag; Indianola; Darktown Strutters Ball.

This is an important document in various ways, with a bonus if you like ragtime, (or jazz in the case of Europe) music.

We can only imagine that as long as Man came into existence he has been able to whistle and able to whistle whatever was the secular or religious music currently in use. It would also have been used, I assume, in imitation of birds in order lure them to be caught by Man. A quick reference to old Music Hall programmes, and, of course, record/cylinder catalogues, shows the art to have been equally popular during the later 1800's. Used musically it is akin to singing for it cannot be haphazard.

So, Ronnie Ronalde was a direct descendant of a long and popular art. During the mid-1950's, at the height of his popularity, his records were selling ½-million each, a great achievement at that time. His bright and cheery personality was ideal for radio and later TV - it comes through on his records.

So we have a selection which combines (often in one tune) whistling, singing, yodelling and bird imitations in a pleasant mixture. There is a variety of music featured. Whether you will wish to purchase this record must clearly depend on your personal taste. But, I found it pleasant listening in a relaxed manner, and I found myself "humming" along with the tunes. The originals have a wide frequency range, being "late" 78 rpm discs.

Mockin' Bird Hill; I miss my Swiss; Yodelling Whistler; Bells across the meadow; Mac Namara's Band; The dream of Olwen; If I were a blackbird; On wings of song; The skater's waltz; The happy whistler; Il bacio; Yodelling waltz; Song of the mountains; The pleasant peasant; Tritsch Traech Polka; When you were sweet sixteen; I leave my heart in an English garden; Ave Maria.

This is one of the great voices of the century but being black, Miss Anderson's career was thwarted and it was not until 1955 that she was admitted to the stage of the Metropolitan in New York. Let us not dwell on such matters.

We hope that Miss Anderson derived satisfaction from the very large audiences which her singing attracted at concerts all over the world. Many awards were bestowed upon her.

The recordings reissued on this LP date from 1927 - 1930. As well as H M V the originals were on Belvox, Royale and Ultraphon.

Only two spirituals are included, the rest being mostly from opera. The full list of music is - Favorita: O mio Fernando - Samson et Dalila; Amour viens aider - Jeanne d'Arc; Adieu forêts (from Royale / Belvox). Heav'n, Heav'n - Sometimes I feel like a motherless child (from Ultraphon). The remainder, from H M V are Samson et Dalila: Amour viens aider & Mon coeur s'ouvre - Don Carlos; O don fatale - Messiah; He was despised - Giordani-Caro mi ben - Martini; Plaisir d'Amour.

The Royale/Belvox recordings have a higher hiss-to-sound ratio than the others. The H M V version of "Amour viens aider", being 12-inch, has the introduction, missing from the Belvox. One feels the full meaning of the words from the expression that Marion Anderson breathes into them. All the records here were recorded in Miss Anderson's younger years so we hear her voice with its fresh nuances and most beautiful timbre. This is an important reissue, which is musically enjoyable.

I would have preferred the "removal" of a little more "hiss" to suit my apparatus, but as the sleeve note says, one may adjust the tone to one's taste

Pearl Records are obviously gradually working through the works of Paderewski. The recordings on this LP were all from the time October to December, 1930. Those marked  have never previously been issued in Britain, all being Victor originals. The pianist was in his 70th year, by which time music-lovers were well aware of his very individual style of interpretation, especially of Chopin's music. We assume that those who will buy this record already know, or know about this. If not, now is the time to begin enjoying his masterly work. Despite his age, Paderewski still had great strength in his arms to execute bravura passages. His interpretation has a quiet subtlety of a previous age, but listen to it afresh. I am sure you will soon love Paderewski's work if you do not know it already.

The pieces played are - All Chopin . . . Mazurka in D Major Op 33, 2. - Mazurka in A flat major Op 59, 2. - Mazurka in C Sharp minor Op 63, 3. - Nocturne in E flat major Op 9, 2 - Polonaise in E flat minor Op. 26, 2. Strauss-Tausig: One lives but once. I shudder to think that I actually saw these shows "live" on the stage in London 1947 - 1950. The impression remaining is that of very enjoyable experience. Oklahoma and Annie were both playing at the same time, but two "Western" shows did not overwhelm us... They cheered us up after the War. Carousel I thought "different" in its style and theme from many other shows I knew, but still very enjoyable. Before seeing it, I recall having read a criticism which thought Bigelow's "soliloquy" too long, but I begged to disagree in that it fitted perfectly and sustained the plot.

All readers must know the plots of these three shows and their music, so we'll just refer to artistes and original recordings...

"Annie Get Your Gun" was on Columbia DX1379/80 with Lew Stone's Orchestra. Recorded on 23rd June, 1947, the cast was Bill Johnson, Dolores Gray, Irving Davies, Wendy Toye. "Oklahoma" was on H M V C3595/6 and was recorded 7th July, 1947, with the Drury Lane Theatre conducted by Reginald Burston. The cast was Howard Keel, Betty Jane Watson, Walter Donahue, Dorothea Macfarland, Henry Clarke. "Carousel" was on Columbia DX 8345/6 and was recorded on 16th. June, 1950, with the Drury Lane Theatre Orchestra conducted by Reginald Burston. The cast was Marion Ross, Margot Moser, Eric Mattson, Iva Withers, Stephen Douglass, Morgan Davies.

These shows have been well-transferred to LP by Chris Ellis. This LP reissues a lively and melodic piece of London Theatre, and even "nostalgia" if you saw the actual shows - your 78's are probably rather worn by now!!! Quite apart from this, this reissue is a neat way to have a selection of the songs from the shows . . . the very reason for the issue of the originals.

B I X B E I D E R B E C K E The Studio Groups 1927-1930

On 6th. August, 1931, this 28-year legend died. He was a fine jazz cornetist whose stature has increased since his death because of the large recorded legacy he left has now been assimilated by the world's jazzfans. Most of his bread-and-butter was earned in big bands like Jean Goldkette and Paul Whiteman. As a member of them he was allowed solo spots and in that capacity we hear him on the records of those bands.

But it is on the records with the smaller studio groups that we really have a chance to hear his work, either playing 'straight' or improvising. There is no doubting his ability as a jazz cornetist - who could breathe life into quite dull tunes.

This set of 4 LP's cover all of the smaller-group studio recordings. There are 68 "tracks" in the set, some like those first recorded under the name of 'The Chicago Loopers' are very rare as are those under Willard Robison's name - but musically they are by no means the greatest.

The majority of the 78 rpm discs were issued under Frank Trumbauer's name, and others under Bix Beiderbecke's own. The rest were issued variously as by Irving Mills & his Hotsy Totsy Gang, Lou Raderman & his Pelham Heath Inn Orchestra, The Broadway Bell Hops.

A fair proportion of these records were available in Britain as 78 rpm discs on Parlophone, though some were only available in "special order" series, or the earlier Parlophone series which were deleted many many years back and have never previously been available on LP. So to the average collector, this set brings together in a very neat, excellently-transferred form the best of Bix Beiderbecke's work. It was a fine inspiration of Chris Ellis and World Records to re-issue this big package. If I were short of money and had to limit myself, I would choose the first record. 68 tune titles is a lot to list here, but I'm sure that a jazzfan or record dealer will help the inexperienced. It is a fitting 50th. Anniversary Memorial to Bix Beiderbecke.

Original Stars of the 20's and 30's sing and play songs featured in Thames Television's Production.

A TV series featuring Jimmy Jewel the comedian has used tunes of the period in which it was set. These tunes, performed by great artistes of the period will also stand on their own merit as an LP long after the TV series is forgotten.

We hear - Elsie Carlisle; I love my baby; So is your old lady - Layton & Johnstone; Bye Bye Blackbird; Me and my shadow - Whispering Jack Smith; Miss Annabelle Lee; Blue Skies - Jack Hylton; You wouldn't fool me would you? - Leslie Sarony; Don't do that to the poor puss cat - Melville Gideon; Side by Side - Will Perry's Orchestra; You were meant for me - The Rhythmic Eight/Arcadians Dance Orchestra; I can't give you anything but love; Happy days are here again - Peggy Wood; The night was made for love; Try to forget - Ted Wallace Orchestra; Ain't she sweet? - Noel Coward; Dearest Love.

Even if you never watch TV this LP brings you an interesting selection of songs and music which will endure repeated listening. Its entertainment ranges from the obvious quiet of Jack Smith to the exuberance of the Bert Firman Rhythmic Eight and Arcadians groups. Romance is introduced by Peggy Wood and Noel Coward. It is in fact somewhat like a variety-bill LP, very like the music hall story of the TV series. Excellent fare.

F E L I X M E N D E L S S O H N ' S Hawaiian Serenaders - Playing 'Evergreens' Hawaiian Style.

The Japanese Sandman - Tiger Rag - Oh, Lady be good - Goodbye Blues - The Sheik of Araby - In the mood - I got rhythm - St. Louis Blues - Dinah - Crazy Rhythm - Nobody's sweetheart - Cherokee - Solitude - Mood Indigo - Whispering - Wabash Blues.

For this re-issue of Felix Mendelssohn's recordings we hear the group performing more like a hot dance band than in traditional vein. Solo guitar work by Roland Peachy or Harry Brooker makes it at times sound like the Quintet du Hot Club de France minus a violin. Those solos are very good, as are some piano-improvised pieces.

The reader must judge for himself on this record . . . If you want only traditional Hawaiian style, you will prefer the tunes Solitude, Mood Indigo, Cherokee, Whispering. If you prefer items akin to a rhythmic group playing dance music you will like the others best.

This is a very competent and pleasing group, and although I like the versions of 'standards' as here, I would have preferred them mixed in with a few langorous numbers. But do investigate the record for yourself. It has been very well transferred from the 78's.

These first British Decca recordings by Ambrose & his Orchestra are exceptionally rare. They were issued in the more expensive M series, which, although Ambrose was popular enough to have at least sold to the clients of the restaurants or hotels where he played, may account for their scarcity.

The lead trumpeter for the whole set of tunes on this LP was the excellent Sylvester Ahola who gave a strong, melodic and incisive lead to the whole band, Ted Heath (later to lead his own superb band) was the trombonist. Danny Polo, very competent on clarinet and saxophones, plays throughout. Bert Read, the pianist, also wrote many of the arrangements.

These are lively tunes, played by a band which rocks along, even for the banal song "Jollity Farm". The original Deccas were often somewhat "dead" and "thick" toned, but they have been very well transferred to the LP, some tracks being less good - which is quite understandable. None spoils the LP however, which is a complement to the unknown engineer.

This is a very important re-issue for the enthusiasts of the vintage British Dance Band scene.

The tunes played are - Mean to me; Do something; Sugar is back; Walking with Susie; Reaching for someone; Dear little café; Hittin' the bottle; I'm bringing a red, red rose; Button up your overcoat; I want to be bad; My lucky star; You wouldn't fool me would you; Thou swell; Lovable and sweet; My dream memory; Jollity Farm; I may be wrong; Miss wonderful; Painting the clouds with sunshine; Tip-toe through the tulips.

It is news when a new record company begins life with a catalogue offering a varied repertoire, but it is even greater news for we who are interested in the era of the 78's that a separate series is to be dedicated to re-issues.

The first of the re-issues is devoted to Frank Crumit, of whom there has been no LP available for a long time, despite his perennial popularity.

This issue includes some which are the most enjoyed by record-fans, like Abdul Abulbul Amir, Song of the Prune, Gay Cabellero, and Thanks for the buggy ride. These and those listed below were all recorded for Victor in the years 1925 - 1928, which I think to have been his best period. He continued to sing many of the songs over the years, and re-recorded them for Decca, but they lack some of the initial spontaneity. So I was particularly pleased to see these restored to the catalogue, as it were.

We are not told who has made the excellent transfers for this, and the rest of the series, but we wonder if it could be Kevin Daly who is associated with the Academy Sound and Vision, Ltd. which produces these records.

The other songs are - The Bride's Lament; Mountain Greenery; The Kingdom coming and the Year of Jubilo, Ukelele Lady; Jack is every inch a sailor; Oh by Jingo; The girl friend; Billy Boy; Get away old man get away; The King of Borneo; Down in the cane brake; Crazy words, crazy tune.

S H A K E T H A T T H I N G - America's Top Bands of the 20's

This LP gives us 16 tunes played by 16 top-line bands from the USA, originally recorded from 1925 - 1930. They are:- The Broadway Nitelites - I wanna be loved by you (vocal by Vaughn de Leath); Ben Selvin - Shakin' the blues (voc Franklyn Bauer); Al Lentz - Hello Swane, Hello (voc Al Lentz); Waring's Pennsylvanians - Mighty Blue (voc Tom Waring); Ted Weems - What a day (voc Parker Gibbs); Howard Lanin - Melancholy Lou; Guy Lombardo - Confessin' (voc G Lombardo); Abe Lyman - Shake that thing; Vincent Lopez - Everything's made for love (voc quartet); Charleston Chasers - Wabash Blues; Paul Whiteman - Smile (voc Qt); Irving Aaronson - Let's make believe (voc Phil Saxe); Nat Shilkret - Just a night for meditation (voc Frank Crumit); Ted Lewis - Bugle Call Rag; Rudy Vallee - 'Sposin' (voc R Vallee); Ben Bernie - He's the last word (voc Scrappy Lambert & Billy Hillpot).

I have known some of these for a long time . . . The Charleston Chasers' "Wabash Blues" has been so well transferred that it was difficult to imagine that it was the same as I have, similarly, Ted Lewis's "Bugle Call" surprised me pleasantly. Guy Lombardo's "Confessin'" is an excellent version of the tune. The quality of transfer is maintained right through the record. The legendary Bix Beiderbecke is heard individually for a bar or so right at the conclusion of "Smile" by Paul Whiteman's orchestra, with whom he played during 1928. All of the tracks are redolent of the period of the late Twenties with their orchestral voicings akin to the quick-step/charleston, but more especially because of the vocal refrains.

If you like dance music, even if you specialise in British, I am sure that you will be pleased to add this to your collection.

George Formby (Senior) 1875 - 1921
George Formby (Junior) 1904 - 1961

George Formby, Senior, created the character of a rather slow provincial lad who imagined that he was a 'lady-killer' or a dare-devil really living the bright life . . . then ending the tale, for instance, by telling how F E W pence the escapade had cost him. He sang in a quiet manner and "pattered" with the audience in a similar manner. We hear his conversational manner in the patter with which he often begins or ends a recording. . . just using up the end of the wax in a droll way after finishing the song. His wife Eliza (Hoy) was a strong support to him, and though he died of tuberculosis in 1921, Eliza died only in the summer of 1981, aged 102. She was a formidable type of woman, as was Beryl (Ingham) who married George Formby, junior.

Formby, junior was 17 when his father died, and his mother made him go on the stage singing his father's songs, having been given a long tour by Moss' Empires out of sympathy. He was poor by comparison with father. He owned a ukelele, and was heard with it by Beryl whom he had met during his tour. In six months they were married . . . then she set to work to make a new man with a new act. The rest is common knowledge - but sadly he died young like his father.

This record is two things in one.

Firstly it is great Music Hall material, especially as Formby, senior is concerned. Secondly it is historical in showing us the junior Formby beginning on the stage with father's material, then two songs of his own, accompanied by his ukelele - still needing hours of practice. These early records of George, junior, on Edison Bell Winner and Dominion, are very rare.

All are very well transferred - which is a bonus worth having!

George Formby, senior:- (recorded 1910 - 1917) - Twice nightly - Then we all went marching in - Looking for mugs (fools) in the Strand - All of a sudden it struck me - Did you see the crowd in Piccadilly? - I had my hand in my pocket at the time - The bells were ringing - Standing at the corner of the street.

George Formby, junior - (recorded 1926 & 1929) John Willie's Jazzband - I was a willing young lad - I parted my hair in the middle - The man was a stranger to me - John Willie, come on - Rolling around Piccadilly - and these two with his own ukelele, All going back - In the Congo.

I especially like the design of the front of the sleeve of this record.

A Music Hall Programme

Sixteen great performers come on to entertain us with some of some of their best songs, even if perhaps, they are not their very greatest hits. On the programme are:- Harry Champion - Don't do it again Matilda; Marie Lloyd - Every little movement has a meaning of its own; Charles Coborn - Two lovely black eyes; Dan Leno - Mrs. Kelly; George Formby, senior - One of the boys; G H Chirgwin - The jocular joker; Billy Williams - Let's all go where the crowd goes; Billy Merson - The photo of the girl I left behind me; Jack Pleasants - I'm twenty-one today; Harry Lauder - Flower of the heather; Maidie Scott - If the managers only thought the same as mother; Wilkie Bard - She sells sea shells; Mark Sheridan - By the sea; Lily Morris - Don't have any more Mrs. Moore; G H Elliott - Dinah; Hello, sunshine, hello.

Of these, the 'Edison Bells' by G H Chirgwin and Jack Pleasants were the least well recorded originally, and are consequently less distinct now, even so, it by no means that they are inaudible. Even though Dan Leno's recording dates from 1901, it was very well done, for one can hear all the words of his sketch.

Many of the records re-issued here are uncommon now. The most recently-recorded is Albert Whelan's 'Hello Sunshine' of 1929, and in content is of the type that one would label 'foxtrot-song', even so it is in the tradition of music hall - with some optimism of the 'depression' years.

Overall, a good 'evening - out' at the Music Hall.

Bix Beiderbecke and Bing Crosby with the Paul Whiteman Orchestra.

This LP also honours the 50th. Anniversary of the death of Bix Beiderbecke. In this case it commemorates his period while working with the great Paul Whiteman's Orchestra.

It gives us twenty 'tracks' originally recorded between 1927 and 1929, 12 of them for Victor and 8 for Columbia. Of course, both Bix and Bing were together on numerous other recordings, but these are among the best, some of them never having been released in any form previously in Britain.

Bix is heard as a soloist on many of the tunes, and on others he is heard leading the trumpet section along. Similarly, Bing is sometimes heard as one of the famous Rhythm Boys, but mostly as solo vocalist. He was in good voice at this time.

This is an LP that I have enjoyed listening to for it has so much to offer. Besides Bix and Bing, the Whiteman Orchestra has an infectious lilt to it, so that the overall effect is that of an excellently rhythmic LP which should be enjoyed by Bing Crosby fans, jazz fans and the dance band enthusiasts.

The tunes presented are - Changes; Mary; There ain't no sweet man that's worth the salt of my tears; Sunshine; Mississippi Mud; High Water; From Monday on; Lovable; My Pet; Louisiana; Do I hear you saying?; You took advantage of me; 'tain't so, honey, 'tain't so; That's my weakness now; I'm in the seventh Heaven; Because my baby don't mean maybe now; Reaching for someone; Oh, Miss Hannah; Your mother and mine; Waiting at the end of the road.

Ted Lewis and his Band

Having begun musically in a hometown boys' band, then progressed through cabaret he joined Earl Fuller's band in New York. In 1917 Ted Lewis formed his own band. In 1919 he began recording. His "High Hat Tragedian of Song" sobriquet was established at this early period, as was his parlendo style of vocalising.

Although Ted Lewis could never be called a virtuoso, he was a competent clarinetist who could clown and carry-off an act. B U T he had the ability to form first class dance bands with first class musicians able to play 'sweet' or 'hot'. This set of recordings is of the more spirited and lively tunes with 'hot' phrases. Soloists are Dave Klein or Walter Kahn, trumpet, George Brunis or Harry Raderman, trombone and Don Murray, clarinet.

For the song 'Some of these days' the vocalist is Sophie Tucker, and one assumes that the record was originally thought of as hers, with Lewis accompaniment. It is immaterial, for it is a fine record and appropriate to this collection.

Ted Lewis died in August, 1971, and worked in cabaret certainly until 1965. His later band years were with a 'sweet' band, but despite quick-tongued critics, he obviously had ability to draw audiences.

The tunes in this collection are - A jazz holiday; Shimme sha wobble; My mama's in town; Say, Arabella; Glad rag doll; Bugle Call Rag; 'bam 'bam 'bammy shore; Where'd you get those eyes?; Milneberg joys; She's funny that way; The camel walk; Hello, Montreal; The new St. Louis Blues; That certain party; Some of these days; The darktown strutters ball.

The original '78s were well-recorded, so we have a fine reissue here that will please dance-band and jazzfans alike . . . and those who like the lively tunes.....

FATS AT THE ORGAN

I thought my myopic eyes were playing tricks when I read the advance news saying that these were piano rolls transposed for the organ, for I have some of these as piano rolls. Then I wondered if someone had done like some Aeolian-roll-owners I know, who put piano rolls on the organ tracker & hope for the best. But no, this record is much more subtle than that, making this an unique LP.

Ronald Curtis owns a magnificent Compton organ . . . The rolls were "manipulated" by the correct tracker bar of a player piano but the tubes at the back were coupled ingeniously to different sections of the organ, and, cutting the long story short, when playing it sounds as if Fats Waller were playing. Ronald Curtis had spent weeks before the recording session listening to Fats Waller's organ records, so was able to manipulate the various stops and voices of the organ, gaining great variety.

We are not told whose brilliant idea it was to make this record in this way. It is a great success and I prefer this version of the tunes to that on the player piano. The style in which the rolls are cut, 1923 - 1927, is typical of those years, in a rhythmical phrasing many used, including George Gershwin, the latter sounding less like what one would imagine of him.

This record must please Fats Waller fans, organ music fans, and all those like the music of the 1920's. It is in stereo of course.

18th. Street Strut; I'm coming Virginia; If I could be with you one hour tonight; Laughin' cryin' blues; Midnight Blues; Papa betta watch your step; Tain't nobody's bizness if I do; Your time now; Nobody but my baby; Do it, Mr. So-and-so; Clearing House blues; You can't do what my last man did; Don't try to take my lovin' man away; Squeeze me.

ELVIS PRESLEY - 'Return to Sender'

The phenomenon of Elvis Presley is perennial and his work must still be valuable to the record companies owning the rights. He was original and set a style, as we all know. Listening retrospectively to these tunes one realises that there was more to Elvis Presley than the image of a young man gyrating on stage with a guitar.

Many of his songs were slow and tender like 'Have I told you lately that I love you' and 'The girl of my best friend'. Most of the tunes in this collection are quicker, or "rock and roll" - which fits the general image. He was, however, very rhythmic - which sets my foot tapping - and he achieves this quite apart from the accompaniment, with his voice. (There were others less capable who depended upon the rhythm section.)

The original records of these here date from the period at the end of '78 rpm discs and on into the 1960's. 'Steadfast, Loyal and True' expresses a fond glance back to the Alma Mater and were it not from a film, one might think it out of character.

So, this collection must be aimed at those who wish to have examples of Elvis Presley, or an average number of LPs by him. In this role, you will be pleased with it.

L.P. ROUNDUP JOHN WANT

Once again Guido Cantelli appears on the scene. I had begun to lose enthusiasm for this unquestionably gifted conductor due to the large number of records forthcoming from World Records. However, SH 374 on which he conducts the Philharmonia Orchestra in two works by Debussy: La Mer and Le Martyre de Saint Sebastien has brought about a change of heart. They are exquisite, with a sonority and beauty for which both conductor and orchestra can take much credit. They were recorded in the distant days of 1954 and first appeared as ALP 1228. The exceptionally high quality of recording is in part attributable to John Holland, who has remastered them for this World Records issue. If there is to be more of Cantelli's work in the pages of the World Records catalogue, let us hope that the overall standards set by this record will be maintained: for this is Cantelli at his best.

It was perhaps predictable that World Records would release a record of Chopin Waltzes played by Alfred Cortot and this they have done. SH 383 'Cortot plays Chopin Waltzes', all 14 of them are (predictably) there: transferred beautifully from DB2311 to 2316. This set appeared in the nineteen thirties as a 'Connoisseur' issue, which meant (so far as I can recall) that it was available to order rather than from the sagging shelves of that respected figure, the H M V Dealer. (This another piece of Gramophone history to be explored: for there were many record shops but only a proportion of these were appointed to sell H M V, whose image set its head and shoulders above, say, Columbia and Parlophone - also part of E M I). I am delighted to see this record take its place alongside the recently issued World Records LP of the Chopin Preludes. Highly recommended. How well the piano survives early recording techniques and transfer!

A very much more unusual record has appeared on the Pearl Historical label: GEMM 195. This is devoted to music by the Russian composer Alexander Glazunov. On one side he conducts 'The Seasons - Ballet Op.67', which was recorded in 1929 and appeared as LX16 to 18 and LX 29-30 (with the deliberate vagueness of those days the orchestra is merely called 'Symphony Orchestra') and on the other side Konstantin Ivanov conducts the Soviet State Symphony Orchestra in his Symphony No.1 in E Major Op.5. This has been transferred from M K D01370/1371, recording date unknown. (M K = 'Mezhdunarodniya Kniga' = "International Book") We know little of this composer's work, except the "Seasons" which will be fairly familiar to most music lovers. It is pleasing to have them back in the catalogue in this version conducted by the composer, who was 63 years old at the time that they were recorded. He had a distinguished career, having once been the Director of the St. Petersburg Conservatory of Music, and having received as well as honorary Doctorates from both Oxford and Cambridge, the title of 'Peoples Artist of the Republic', conferred by the Soviet Authorities. Nevertheless he left the Soviet Union in 1928 when invited by the Columbia Graphophone Company in London to become Principal Adjudicator at the Schubert Centenary Festival Competition that they had organised and from there he settled in Paris where he died in 1936. His remains were returned to the Soviet Union for burial alongside the other Russian masters such as Borodin. It is thus obvious that there was no permanent alienation as a result of his decision to spend the last years of his life outside the Soviet Union. The Symphony is famous but barely known today. It was first performed when the composer was a mere 16, and then under the baton of none less than Balakirev. Shortly after Liszt performed it at Weimar. Though short it is a work of immense stature and it seems barely credible that it came from the pen of a sixteen-year old. Ivanov conducts it colourfully and with immense enthusiasm and the sound quality is more than acceptable.

Incidentally, a Glazunov Society has been formed under the patronage of the composer's daughter Elena. Those interested should write to Charles Haynes at Pavilion Records Ltd., 48 High Street, Pembury, Kent TN2 4NU.

BOOKS REVIEW E.B.

THE QUARTERLY JOURNAL
of the Library of Congress
Volume 37, numbers 3 - 4, Summer - Fall, 1980.

This is published as a supplement to the Annual Report of the Librarian of Congress.

The Library of Congress is a vast collection of buildings now that houses books, films, documents, famous diaries, records, paintings and many other allied items.

The present volume (excellently produced and illustrated) has interesting articles on early films (outside the scope of our Review) one of which tells me that the tune "Der Führer's Face", as played by George Trevar's Orchestra, reviewed in this issue, originated in a Donald Duck cartoon.

Another important article on films is "Golden Voices, Silver Screen Opera Singers as Movie Stars". We can also read of the Armed Forces Radio Service which provided entertainment for the U.S. Forces during, and just after World War II. The important point for our readers is that many of the programmes were recorded on to slow-playing acetate discs. Many of these discs survive, some have been re-issued on LP discs (quite legally), and some are deposited in the Library of Congress. One can quickly realise how important such surviving discs are no matter what type of entertainment or music they contain.

Most important to us is the article "Emile Berliner and Nineteenth Century Disc Recordings", by James R. Smart of the Motion Picture, Broadcasting, and Recorded Sound Division (of the Library of Congress).

The writer describes some of the early recordings which the student may hear at the Library and then goes on to Emile Berliner's career. It must be recalled that the Berliner family 'archive' of pictures and documents has recently been given to the Library. Research into the early days of Berliner's activities remain sketchy, but it seems clear that there was no "g a p" between the early experiments and the 7-inch discs with which we are all familiar. It is merely that we lack the written evidence. Discs and ephemera presented to the Library by Robert Sanders (grandson of Berliner) point to continued activity.

The repertoire of the early Berliner discs is discussed as well discrepancies between reconstructed numbering systems taken from discs and printed lists.

The article goes on to the various Berliner Companies, Mr. Frank Seaman's activities, litigation, on to Mr. Berliner's later years. There are some photographs which I have not previously seen. Those specialising in the history of "early Berliner" will find this article particularly interesting and informative.

His on inventé LA MACHINE PARLANTE
by Paul Charbon

An excellently-produced hard-back book which describes the work of the pioneers of sound-recording. Léon Scott, (and Koenig and the Dutch, F. C. Donders), Charles Cros (and Louis Breguet), Thomas Edison, A G Bell, Chichester Bell and Charles Tainter, Emile Berliner, Colonel Gouraud, Gianni Bettini, Henri Lioret, Charles and Emile Pathé (with Claude Grivollos and E. O. Kumborg) François Dussard (microphonographie), Valdemar Poulsen (telegraphone) (with P. O. Pedersen) - magnetic recording.

This book is aimed at the newcomer to the history of talking-machines, describing simply the work of the pioneers. To prevent the reader losing his way, the Chronology at the end is a valuable guide. It is useful to those of us who know something of the story, for it places the work of each pioneer in relation to the others.

In his narrative, Monsieur Charbon draws our attention to those who assisted the pioneers - names sometimes missed elsewhere but which I put within brackets above. As an example, it was some while before I encountered the name Kumborg who collaborated with the Pathés. We see photographs of many of these "shadowy" personages - and also that of Edison in Washington on 18th April 1878, with Charles Batchelor and Uriah Painter (Edison Agent in Washington), whereas one mostly sees the photograph showing Edison alone.

Henri Lioret is named the 'First French Talking Machine-Maker', for his first phonograph, with small cylinders, appeared on the market in 1893. His machine was influenced by Lioret's work as a clock maker. Charles Pathé is credited as the 'Creator of the Phonograph Industry in France' - which is excellent comment. Gianni Bettini shows "A Step Towards High Fidelity" with his micro-reproducer. Emile Berliner, "The Father of the Disc", is dealt with from his invention of a microphone for the telephone and then into his work on the flat disc recording.

The Author still tells us that Berliner developed his Gramophone commercially as a toy . . . but I join others in differing on this point in that the word "toy", or "novelty" has been lifted out of its 19th Century context where it was applied to the Gramophone because it was an instrument to amuse, or entertain, rather than form a useful work-like function. The mis-application of the word toy was no doubt emphasised because among the first manufacturers were toymakers.

Of course, Edison receives adequate coverage with reference to the sale of his Phonographs in France as well as development in U S A. The talking doll is also mentioned, and illustrated. (The Lioret talking doll is dealt with, too, under its inventor)

The Graphophone in France, as marketed by Pathé and the Zonophone, as marketed by Ullmann Frères are dealt with.

The work of François Dussard is new to me. By using the ear - pieces of a telephone he listened "electrically" to cylinders and to record them. M. Mercadier, a telegraph engineer worked along the same lines. They associated similarly with Georges Jaubert who worked at the Polytechnic School in Paris. Along with a M. Germain, using an electrical reproducer, a loudspeaker was built, which could be made to amplify the sounds from a cylinder. This was all around the turn-of-the-century.

The final chapter, "Sources" is an extremely useful bibliography arranged under the equivalent headings of the foregoing chapters. For the newcomer, this is a useful and well-illustrated introduction to the early years of the recording scene, as related to the pioneers. To those of us who have already seen a few books (!!) it is still fine, for with the illustrations, it will be a quick reference book and aide-memoire. I like it very much. B U T, the text is in French - but nothing difficult is met in the easy-flowing text, helped of course with the pictures. It is a big book.

Published by Editions Jean-Pierre Gyss, it is available from - Amis de l'Histoire des P.T.T. d'Alsace, B P 153 R4, Strasbourg Cedex, 67004 France. Price 148 Francs inc.post.

DON'T JAZZ IT'S MUSIC
by Edward S. Walker

This book (page size 8 x 6 ins.) has been personally published by Edward Walker and tells us the story of Ragtime coming to Britain, the birth and establishment of "dance music" with "hot" passages, and what happened right through to the 1970's.

It is under the chapter headings - Ragtime - That Mysterious Rag: The 20's - Charleston, Charleston, show me the way: The Savoy Hotel - Stomping at the Savoy: Jack Hylton - Oh! Listen to the Band: The 30's - Swing is here: The 40's and 50's - What goes?: The 60's and 70's - You came a long way from St. Louis.

Mr. Walker's aim in compiling what he calls "notes" is to show how ragtime, jazz and dance music developed and flourished in Britain after the initial impetus from U S A as an indigenous music. We feel he is right in that much good music of these styles has been produced outside the U S A but because of the influence of publishers, writers and broadcasters, tends to be overlooked or ignored.

So it was in Britain at any point since, say, 1900. Ragtime music - or correct Ragtime music - was poorly represented in Britain, either on record or in the flesh. Apart from that, other types of popular music have been alive somewhere all the time, well performed. Now that I am in the year 1981, listening to records NOW of music of the dance bands that I used to hear regularly in the 1930's, 40's and even 50's from my radio, I realise that the British product was as good as any from wherever, in fact, even better than certain "over-exposed" American bands.

Mr. Walker makes a very important point, of a fact which none of us can escape, that when we listen to music - especially on old records - from a period before our own life experience, we do not hear it in the manner of that in which it was composed or performed, but through ears and mind full of today's experience. If we enjoy old records today do we derive the same amount of enjoyment as listeners from the year in which they were recorded? I may be enlarging the point - but I feel it is relevant not only to music, but anything looked at in a historical way.

So, perhaps we should view "military" band records of ragtime music, or even banjo solos or ragtime songs by, say, Stanley Kirkby in a different light.

There are many facts and dates in this small book. Pictures . . . There are lots of them, many I had not previously seen of dance bands, musicians, locations, etc. It is good to see photos of the early banjists such as Parke Hunter, Cantrell & Williams, Seth Weeks, Charlie Rogers and so on. There are pictures of the musicians who played in the "early" lesser-known locations. All most useful. I would add only one constructive comment about the illustrations. . . . They would have looked even better if printed on glossy 'art' paper.

An excellent reference-tool to have. Price £3, inc.post from Edward S. Walker, 264 Broadway North, Walsall WS1 2PT.
